MBTA Proposal To Relocate Bus Depot At Lowe's Site Meeting Topic Jan. 29

By SCOTT JACKSON
Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci will host a community meeting Wednesday, Jan. 29, to discuss the MBTA's proposal to relocate its bus depot to the former home of Lowe's on Burgin Parkway in South Quincy.

The public meeting will start at 6 p.m. that night inside the auditorium at the South-West Middle School, located at 444 Granite St.

The MBTA in December said it was considering relocating its Quincy bus depot, currently located 954 Hancock St. adjacent to Veterans' Memorial Stadium, to the former Lowe's at 599 Burgin Pkwy.

Palmucci, in a letter to residents, said the MBTA would not have to follow the city permitting process if it pursues plans to move the bus depot to the Burgin Parkway site.

"I have discussed this proposal with many area residents; I appreciate and understand the concerns this proposal raises. I wanted to make sure anyone with concerns has an opportunity to weigh-in and ask questions before anything happens at the site," Palmucci stated in his letter.

"Please be aware that as

Thank You From Wreaths Across America Team

Volunteers Needed To Remove Wreaths From Cemeteries Jan. 25

Thank you, thank you and thank you!!

Looking back on National Wreaths Across America Day 2019 Quincy, we can't help but appreciate what an amazing city and community we are part of. National Wreaths Across America Day 2019 was a huge success, as we placed 7,300 veterans' remembrance wreaths at seven different cemeteries throughout the city.

We are already working on Quincy's Wreaths Across America 2020, but before we let the new year, life and work take over our every thought, we want to say THANK YOU!! Being able to continue to do this is solely due to you, the donors and volunteers, you are the soul and spirit to making this possible.

Each donation strengthens the mission in remembering and honoring all of our veterans, and for every volunteer, you make the day a success by taking part and saying the veteran's name aloud.

Each year the efforts grow and we learn. We look forward to many years to come!!

If you are interested and available, join us at Mount Wollaston Cemetery to help retire the remembrance wreaths on Saturday, Jan. 25 starting at 10 a.m.

Happy New Year!!

Many thanks,

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1924 real photo postcard view of the driveway entrance to the Eastern Nazarene College at 23 East Elm Avenue in Wollaston. They had moved here in 1919. The building shown here was originally built as the retirement home for Josiah Quincy, Jr., when he completed his term as mayor of Boston in 1849. He was the second of three Josiah Quincy's to be mayor of Boston. After he died in 1882 the private Quincy Mansion School for Girls used his home until the college bought it. At the time of this picture, the college only had three other small buildings on its campus. As they expanded and built more buildings they kept this original building for many years, but finally the house was razed and part of this site is now home to their church on East Elm and Wendell Avenues.

SOUGHT FOR PILGRIM PLAZA

The Pilgrim Plaza $1,885,000 industrial revenue bond would be used to finance a new mini-mall at the corner of Quincy Avenue and Scammell Street. It was referred to the council's finance committee.

Approval by the city council would enable the developers, a Boston group, to borrow funds at below market rates since financial leaders can collect interest on the bonds free of federal taxes. Both city and state approval of such bonds are necessary.

300 Runners Participate In George 'Trigger' Burke 5K

9th Annual Road Race
Benefits
S.S. YMCA

While running a road race in January in Quincy, one can usually expect less than ideal weather conditions. New England winters can be cold, but on Jan. 5, it was not the low temps, but the wind that presented the greatest challenge.

Despite sustained winds of nearly 20 miles per hour out of the northwest which pushed in the faces of runners completing their route from Sea Street back to the Y facility on Coddington Street, 300 athletes got the jump on their 2020 goals by completing their first 5K before the first week of the year was over. They also made their first contributions back to their community just by racing, as all proceeds from the event went to the South Shore YMCA's annual support campaign to fund financial assistance to ensure that Y memberships, programs and services remain accessible to all.

Formerly known as the Frozen 5K, the race since 2019 has been named for a Quincy community champion, George "Trigger" Burke. Burke, an esteemed lawyer, rose to stardom on the basketball courts of Quincy High, UMass Amherst and the Boston Celtics. He received a lengthy list of accolades over the course of his hoops career, including being named a second team All American, and first team All East, All New England, All Yankee Conference, and All Boston Garden, and remains one of only a select few UMass Minutemen to have his jersey number retired alongside names like Julius "Dr. J" Erving.

It all started for Burke at the Y.

"When I was a young boy, I attended camp through the Quincy YMCA," said Burke. "I started playing basketball in that gym on Washington Street in the YMCA and ended up with the greatest team ever in the history of basketball. People ask me 'why do you give to the Y,' and it's simple. It's because they do so much good in our community."

Burke is living proof. After wrapping up his basketball career on the parquet, he finished law school and began his legal career. A former acting mayor of the City of Quincy and district attorney of Norfolk County, Burke went on to enjoy a successful law career and now gives back to his community in many ways.

Burke and his family were in attendance as participants finished the race and were joined by 200 friends and family members to take part in family fun post-race activities, including an inflatable obstacle course, bounce house and awards presentations. Overall winners included Patrick Driscoll, for the men, with a time of 16:59, and Victoria Rocha for the women, with a time of 18:21.

"George Burke cares deeply about Quincy, and that every individual in our community has the opportunity to do better in their life," said Kathy Quigley, Development Director, South Shore YMCA, Quincy Branch. "He's given so much of himself to so many, and his generous philanthropic efforts have touched more people than we'll ever know."

Quincy Democratic City Committee Hosting 'Day Of Service' Monday

This Martin Luther King's Day, the Quincy Democratic City Committee and volunteers from all across the South Shore will gather together at the Stop and Shop Community Room at 65 Newport Ave., North Quincy, to prepare bagged lunches for delivery to Father Bill's & Main-spring, an area shelter for the homeless.

"We think the best way to honor Dr. King's legacy is to provide for our neighbors in need," said QDCC Chairperson Alicia Gardner. "This is the first of many service-oriented events that the Quincy Democrats will host this year. Anyone who would like to donate some of their time is welcome to participate."

This will be the second year of the service project. Last year's event had over 25 volunteers of all ages coming together to make over 200 bagged lunches for the shelter.

State Rep. Bruce Ayers (D-1st Norfolk), said he is proud to support the event. "Whatever your political affiliation, Quincy is a community," Ayers said. "By coming together and helping one another, we show that even as our city grows and changes, our civic values of service, compassion and altruism remain the same."

The event will take place Monday, Jan. 20 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Volunteers with transportation are encouraged to assist with bringing the bagged lunches from the Stop and Shop Community Room to Father Bill's starting at 1 p.m.

All locations are ADA accessible, and anyone who wishes to attend can RSVP by visiting the Quincy Democratic City Committee web site at QuincyDems.com.

'Our Year In Love And Parties' By Karen Hattrup

'The Fine Print' Book Review

By BETH VACCA

I was recently listening to a radio program where people were calling in with book recommendations. An adult listener phoned in with a novel that had resonated with her. The host felt like it was necessary to alert the listeners that the book was a YA (young adult). The panel went on to share that many adult readers do not feel like the young adult genre is for them. I was happy to hear that the panel did not agree.

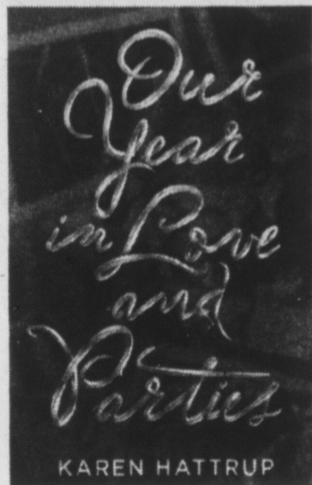

I love this genre. I have never stopped, however, to consider exactly why. Upon reflection I think it may be because these characters are in the process of figuring out who they are. Searching for their own identity in the world. Taking ownership of their lives with endless possibilities before them. Making decisions. Making mistakes. Becoming adults.

And through these characters authors have tackled a wide range of difficult issues.

As a mother reading this genre I am given the opportunity to think through both the time honored difficult choices that young adults must make along with current issues that are challenging our children today. Issues that we did not have to deal with in our generation. I am able to start discussions on these topics based on fictional characters in a non-threatening, non-accusatory way even when my kids haven't read the novel.

It is often challenging to make a good decision while in the midst of a difficult situation. In my opinion, if you have been given the opportunity to decide how you will react before the situation arises better decisions are more likely.

I'm sure it comes as no surprise that this review is on a YA novel. "Our Year in Love and Parties" by Karen Hattrup. Written in two voices, one male and one female, this is a novel about two friends who want something more. It is written over the course of one year and revolving around four specific nights.

Tucker, the male character, knows he is a sensitive soul. He is considering a career working with children. Tucker's love for people, however, is not valued by his father. Tucker struggles with who he knows he is and what the world expects of him.

Our female character also has issues with her father. As a result of her insecurities Erika makes a bad decision. In an instant she not only ruins her friendships and her senior year, but also creates a digital history she will have to deal with for the rest of her life.

Friendships, dating, sex, divorce, marriage, the internet, depression and self destruction are issues these young adults are dealing with and issues we need to be talking about.

These issues are not resolved, but that is not the point. Our kids need to read about tough issues. About consequences. And we need to help them think before they find themselves in these moments that have the potential to change the course of their lives. Reading YA has opened my eyes to this younger generation. Sometimes in frightening ways. I believe reading is important. However, after finishing this book, I am prompted to say Don't forget to talk Talk with your kids. Even if you think they aren't listening.

Bank Of Canton Collects Over 400 Winter Clothing Items For Charities

Bank of Canton's Quincy branch located at 60 McGrath Highway recently distributed more than 100 winter clothing accessories to Interfaith Social Services, following the bank's annual Mitten Tree collection drive.

A total of 430 handmade and newly purchased hats, mittens, gloves and scarves were collected by Bank of Canton's four branches and corporate headquarters. The items were donated to Interfaith Social Services of Quincy, Cradles to Crayons of Brighton and the Friendly Food Pantry of Randolph.

The donations came from the bank's customers, employees and others. The knitting clubs of the Canton Council on Aging and two Milton assisted living residences, Fuller Village and Winter Valley, contributed significantly to the drive. The bank provided the knitting clubs with free yarn, and the clubs responded by donating several bags of handmade items.

The audience of the bank's holiday movie matinee event, held on Dec. 7th at Bank of Canton's 250-seat corporate auditorium, contributed more than 100 items as well.

"It's great to see so many individuals and groups participate in the collection drive and embrace the spirit of the season," said Stephen P. Costello, president and CEO of Bank of Canton. "Their generous contributions will help a lot of families."

The drive was part of Bank of Canton's holiday promotion, which also included the holiday movie matinee and a mitten-themed craft contest that awarded $1,000 in prizes to young local artists.

Spaghetti Casserole

By MARIE

There is something about the word casserole that reminds me of being cozy and eating a comfort food which today's recipe made me feel like when I read it. It is one that we can make in the morning and then bake it in the oven when we are ready for dinner.

Through the years I have made all kinds of pasta casseroles, but this one was made with spaghetti. It caught my eye because spaghetti is one of my favorites.

For Casserole Sauce

- 1 pound ground beef or turkey
- 1 small onion sliced thin
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 1 large can crushed tomato
- 2 teaspoons Basil and parsley

For Casserole

- 1 8 ounce package of cream cheese bring to room temperature and cut in 1 inch squares
- ½ cup parmesan grated cheese
- 1 teaspoon fresh parsley to add to cream cheese

- ½ cup shredded mozzarella cheese (or any favorite cheese) for topping
- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- Salt and pepper to taste.

1 12 ounce box of spaghetti

In a skillet, heat the oil until hot and sauté onion and garlic until onion is lucid. Sauté the meat until meat is browned. Add can of tomatoes and simmer, stir and cook for 20 minutes

While sauce is simmering cook spaghetti according to directions.

Drain spaghetti and while hot fold in cream cheese until evenly distributed and blended.

Add the cooked spaghetti and one half grated cheese (1/4 cup). Toss until cheese is melted.

In a 9 x 12 baking dish put layer of sauce on bottom add all of the spaghetti and turn until all spaghetti is covered with sauce then add rest of meat sauce and then with the rest of the grated cheese and mozzarella.

Bake at 350 degrees in oven until top is bubbly.

Super Easy Snacking Nuts

By SUSIE

Snacking on nuts are a great idea for those of us who like the "salty crunchy" taste without resorting to things like chips or crackers.

Nuts contain healthy fats, protein, fiber, and important vitamins and minerals. They will keep your blood sugar at a good place while out running errands or at work will help not to eat the bad stuff in the vending machines.

This is a super easy, yet very impressive and tasty recipe. Hope you enjoy it as much as I do!

- 1/2 cup almonds, ½ cup pecans, ½ cup

walnuts

- 2 teaspoons chili powder
- ½ teaspoon cumin
- ½ teaspoon oregano (crush well with your fingers to make finer)
- ½ teaspoon granulated garlic or onion
- ½ teaspoon ground black pepper
- ½-1 teaspoon herbamare or trocimore
- seasoned salt (or plain sea salt)
- 2 tablespoons olive oil

Place nuts in a large cast iron skillet over medium heat and "toast" until lightly browned. Combine seasonings in a bowl and add to the nuts tossing until well coated. Serve!

Hemophilia: Types, Symptoms, Treatments

A Message From Ruth Jones, City Of Quincy Health Commissioner

By RUTH JONES
MSPH, BSN, RN,
BC, CP-FS

Hemophilia is a blood clotting disorder caused by a genetic mutation. A protein called clotting factor is essential for blood to clot properly, and people with hemophilia have little or no clotting factor. Genes are responsible for determining how the body makes blood clotting factors. A defect in the gene responsible for making blood clotting factors can result in hemophilia.

Most people with hemophilia are male but in rare cases, females can also have this disorder. The gene responsible for making clotting factors is carried on the X chromosome. Females possess two X chromosomes (XX) and males have one X and one Y chromosome (XY). Because males only get one X chromosome, they only have one copy of most of the genes on the X chromosome and will thus have hemophilia if the gene is defective on the X chromosome. When a female has hemophilia it means both X chromosomes are affected, or one chromosome is affected and the other is inactive or missing. When a female has one affected X chromosome she is considered a carrier of hemophilia, and can pass the affected chromosome on to her child. Female carriers may also exhibit some symptoms of hemophilia.

There are 3 types of hemophilia.

1. Hemophilia A (Classic Hemophilia) - missing or low levels of clotting factor VIII. This accounts for about 80% of all cases of hemophilia.

2. Hemophilia B (Christmas Disease) - missing or low levels of clotting factor IX.

3. Acquired or sporadic - This type is rare. People with acquired or sporadic hemophilia are not born with the disorder but they develop it later in life and the body begins to produce antibodies that attack the clotting factors and prevent them from functioning normally.

Since the blood does not clot properly, bleeding is the chief symptom of hemophilia. Bleeding in various parts of the body can cause different symptoms, including:

- Bruising
- Joint pain and swelling from bleeding in joints
- Heavy bleeding from minor cuts
- Blood in the urine or stool
- Nosebleeds that are frequent and difficult to stop
- Bleeding mouth and gums
- Bleeding after injections

Hemophilia can result in life-threatening complications from internal bleeding in the brain. Even a minimal bump on the head can trigger bleeding in the brain in patients with hemophilia. Approximately 10% of patients with severe hemophilia develop internal bleeding in the brain, and about 30% can die from this complication.

Signs and symptoms of bleeding in the brain include:

- Vomiting
- Painful headaches
- Neck pain or stiffness
- Double vision
- Sleepiness
- Behavioral changes
- Weakness

- Loss of coordination
- Problems walking
- Seizures

Von Willebrand disease (VWD) is another form of clotting disorder which may be confused with Hemophilia; however it is not the same as hemophilia. Hemophilia is caused by a problem with clotting factors VIII or IX while VWD is initiated by a problem with a different clotting factor called von Willebrand factor. Von Willebrand disease is more common than hemophilia, affecting up to 2% of the population, typically presenting with milder symptoms, and affecting males and females equally.

The main treatment for hemophilia is to replace the missing clotting factor in a treatment called replacement therapy. Clotting factor VIII (for hemophilia A) or clotting factor IX (for hemophilia B) are administered through intravenous infusion and can usually be done at home to help prevent bleeding episodes. Other treatments for hemophilia include the hormone desmopressin, which is used to treat people who have mild hemophilia A. It cannot be used to treat severe hemophilia A or hemophilia B of any form. Antifibrinolytic medications which help prevent blood clots from breaking down may also be used along with replacement therapy. Gene therapy is not yet an accepted treatment for hemophilia but researchers are exploring this as a potential treatment for the future.

Currently no cure exists for hemophilia. In rare cases, those afflicted with hemophilia that have had liver transplants have been cured. Clotting factor is produced in the liver, and in these cases the new livers the patients received made normal amounts of clotting factors. Nevertheless, transplants are precarious procedures that are only performed on patients whose lives are at risk due to impaired liver function, and they are not used to cure hemophilia. The deciding factor in regards to the life expectancy of patients with hemophilia is receiving appropriate treatment. Patients who do not receive suitable treatment may die in childhood. With adequate treatment life expectancy for those with hemophilia is only approximately 10 years less than the overall population.

Ruth Jones is the health commissioner for the City of Quincy.

New Year, New Finances

By BETTER
BUSINESS BUREAU

Is your New Year's Resolution to get out of debt? Improving your finances and increasing your savings is a common goal on Jan 1, but it's not always easy.

If you are in debt, you're not alone. Total American household debt is only rising. According to the US Federal Reserve's Center for Microeconomic Data, "that total household debt increased by $92 billion, or 0.7 percent, to $13.95 trillion in the third quarter of 2019." Although getting out of debt, especially credit card debt, may seem daunting, it can start you on the road to financial freedom and wealth creation.

If you want to get your finances in order in 2020 and stick to your New Year's Resolution, follow these tips from your BBB:

• Take a closer look at your credit cards. Credit cards are known for their high interest rates, and this can waste a lot of money over time. See if you can use a balance transfer offer to switch to a card with a lower rate. Do your research on BBB.org first; consumers nationwide filed more than 8,933 complaints against credit card companies in 2019. Make sure to read the terms and contract very carefully - there may be big penalties if you miss a payment. If you have multiple cards, decide which debt-paying strategy is best for you. Some experts recommend paying off cards with the highest interest rates first, but others recommend paying off cards with the smallest balances first - figure out what works best for you. Additionally, try sending in payments throughout the month. Put the $5 you would have spent on a morning coffee towards your debt instead.

• Don't waste money on unethical businesses or scams. When making a purchase or choosing a business, always check with BBB. Making careful decisions now can save you time, money, and headaches later. Research all companies at BBB.org, and check BBB Scam Tracker regularly to see what scams are happening in your area.

• Take advantage of free tools. There are many online tools that can help you manage and reduce your debt. A great place to start is the BBB Financial Building Blocks website, which helps consumers evaluate their finances, learn how to stay debt-free, and protect themselves from scams and illegal collection calls. Additionally, you can use the free and easy-to-use debt solution tool to find options for managing your debt.

• Write out the year

2020. Avoid abbreviating the year 2020. Writing "20" without the first two digits may leave consumers vulnerable to scammers. Fraudsters can capitalize on the use of abbreviated dates in the new decade, altering document dates to their benefit by adding just two digits. For instance, the date "1/10/20" could be changed to "1/10/2019," making consumers vulnerable to an array of fraud. Checks, bank drafts, pay orders, bills, legal documents and more are susceptible to alteration.

• Start budgeting. Creating a written budget and tracking your spending is one of the best ways to save money and stop spending more than you earn! First, figure out how much debt you have; you need an accurate picture before you can figure out your budget. Note the difference between fixed expenses, needs, and wants. If you have debt, include repayment goals in your budget. If you can, try to factor in retirement and emergency savings as well. Save money by giving up your morning coffee and cooking at home instead of getting takeout. Factor in any alternate income that you can think of, like selling unused items or part-time work in the gig economy.

"WILDLY EXCITING": QUINCY HOMESTEAD AND THE INVENTION OF PRESERVATION ARCHITECTURE

Design By Nancy Medina

Dr. Timothy T. Orwig Lecture Feb. 1 At Quincy Historical Society 'Wildly Exciting: Quincy Homestead And The Invention Of Preservation Architecture' Topic

Many know that the (Dorothy) Quincy Homestead was designated a National Historic Landmark in 2005 due to its unique architecture, but few are familiar with the story of its early 1904 restoration by historic architect Joseph Everett Chandler (1863-1945).

Chandler became nationally known for his restorations of historic houses, often in collaboration with progressive women social reformers of his time, including the National Society of the Colonial Dames of America in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts (NSCDA-MA).

Chandler's collaboration with the NSCDA-MA at Quincy led to one of the first American restorations that carefully preserved both the history and architectural fabric of an historic house. At the Quincy Homestead, Chandler formulated some of the archaeological techniques he used in his subsequent restorations, which included the Paul Revere House and Old State House in Boston and the House of the Seven Gables in Salem. Chandler restored a hundred old houses, including three dozen which now function as museums. He also wrote the definitive text The Colonial House (1916).

Celebrated by the Boston press as an "Architectural Sherlock Holmes," Chandler carefully sought clues to a house's history and peeled back the layers to get to the truth. In 1904 he wrote the NSCDA-MA about the Quincy Homestead, "It was wildly exciting pulling down that plaster facing painted in imitation of real brick work and finding the original old scarred fireplace with blackened bricks and the supports for the crane still there, and even the old smoke flue for the oven." Later in his career Chandler dramatically staged fireplace reveals for clients, like the host of a home improvement television show. A chapter in The Colonial House warned homeowners "What NOT to Do!"

Intrigued to hear about what Chandler found to be "wildly exciting" during his career and eager to hear more about Chandler's restoration efforts and his influence on the Homestead's current architecture? Save the date and plan to attend the lecture "Wildly Exciting: Quincy Homestead and the Invention of Preservation Architecture" on Saturday, Feb. 1, 10:30 a.m. at the Quincy Historical Society. The lecture will be delivered by Timothy T. Orwig, PhD, who teaches art and architectural history at Boston College. In his publications, Professor Orwig has investigated the successes and failures of the historic preservation movement. He is the leading authority on Joseph Everett Chandler, the subject of his dissertation and upcoming book.

This lecture is sponsored by the NSCDA-MA Quincy Homestead Committee in cooperation with the Quincy's History & Heritage Roadshow. The event is free of charge and open to the public.

Combat Zone Book Author Speaker At Library Jan. 22

Author and journalist Stephanie Schorow will discuss her 2017 book, "Inside the Combat Zone: The Stripped Down Story of Boston's Most Notorious Neighborhood" Wednesday, Jan. 22 at 7 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy.

With this book, Schorow examines the constitutional and societal issues that led Boston to engineer an audacious social experiment, heralded across the nation as the solution to the pornography epidemic. She introduces the players who made it all possible and the antics and tragedies that unfolded as a result of their decisions.

Some nostalgically recall the Combat Zone as a seductive adult playground where men and women alike found the freedom to express themselves; others remember it as a dangerous, crime-ridden neighborhood. Schorow deftly captures a moment in Boston's history that helped shape the city today — and that will likely never be seen again.

Social Security Matters

Ask Rusty: Can My Husband Use The 'Restricted Application?'

By RUSSELL GLOOR
AMAC Certified Social Security Advisor
Association Of Mature American Citizens

Dear Rusty: My question is about the "restricted application for spousal benefits only" I saw referenced in an article. I will turn 66 in February and have applied for my "full retirement benefit" and will continue to work full time. My husband turned 66 this month and has not yet applied for his benefits. According to the Social Security paperwork sent to us, I will receive about $1900 a month and my husband, who is self-employed, would only receive $500 to $600. If my husband claimed "spousal benefits only" using the restricted application, would I still receive my $1900 and he would receive 50% of that for an estimated total of $2850? Doesn't seem to make sense to me! As you can see, we must be in denial of our age and are not knowledgeable about Social Security!! Signed: Inquisitive Senior

Dear Inquisitive: Based on the amounts you quoted in your email (which I assume were recent estimates from the Social Security Administration), your husband should claim his own benefits this month and then claim his normal spousal benefit in February when your benefits start. Since your husband has already reached his full retirement age of 66, his spousal benefit will be the full 50% of the benefit you are entitled to when you reach your full retirement age in February.

Although your husband qualifies for and can submit a "restricted application for spousal benefits only" (as described in the article you read), there is little reason for him to do so because his own benefit, even if he delays claiming it until he is 70, will be less than his spousal benefit from your record. Instead, since his spousal benefit from you will be the highest amount he will ever be eligible for, he can just claim his own benefit first and then claim his regular spousal benefit to begin when your Social Security retirement benefit starts. Here's why:

If your husband's current benefit at his full retirement age (FRA) would be $600 and he's not yet collecting, he could earn delayed retirement credits (DRCs) at a rate of 0.667 per month of delay (8% per year of delay). That will mean his own benefit would be 32% more at age 70 than he is now eligible for at his FRA, which means his maximum benefit on his own earnings record will be $792/month ($600 plus 32%).

The only reason to file the restricted application (for which he is eligible only because he was born before January 2, 1954) is to let his own benefit grow while he collects a spousal benefit, so he can switch to his own higher benefit later. But since his spousal benefit from you will be about $950 - more than the maximum benefit he can get from his own record at age 70 - his most prudent choice would be to simply claim his own benefit now and apply for his normal spousal benefit to start when your SS benefit starts in February. No need for him to file the restricted application because his own benefit will never be higher than his spousal benefit. And just for complete clarity, your husband collecting his spousal benefit from you will not affect your own Social Security retirement benefit in any way.

Bistro Chi Owners Aiming For New Location

By SCOTT JACKSON

The JP Fuji Group is in the midst of negotiating a lease for a new restaurant in Quincy that would replace Bistro Chi, a now-closed Quincy Center eatery.

Bistro Chi had been located at 39 Cottage Ave. The city acquired that building through eminent domain in 2017 as part of the redevelopment of the adjacent Hancock Lot. The parcels at 23-29 Cottage Ave. and 31-39 Cottage Ave. were taken so that Cottage Avenue could be widened, and a new park will be built on the remaining land.

Tony Liang, the COO of the JP Fuji Group, told the Board of License Commissioners on Jan. 7 that his company is in the process of negotiating a lease for a new restaurant space to which Bistro Chi's liquor license could be transferred.

"I just want to apologize for the delay in determining the use of the license that was used at Bistro Chi,"

Liang said. "It's been kind of a long process for us to find the proper location for us to utilize the license. We are very selective in the area where open a business."

He said the company has been discussing a new lease with a landlord for the past four weeks and the agreement could be finalized within the next four weeks. Liang said it was too soon to specify where the new restaurant would be located.

The company would need approval from the board before the liquor license can be transferred.

The JP Fuji Group owns four restaurants in Quincy - Fuji at WOC in Quincy Center and North Quincy's Shabu Restaurant, Yocha and B Café. The company has additional restaurants in Boston, Cambridge and Somerville.

The license board held hearings on the status of four other closed restaurants during its meeting Jan. 7.

The board cancelled the liquor license held by Angelo's Coal Fired Pizza. The restaurant, formerly located at 1657 Hancock St., closed last year. City Clerk Nicole Crispo said the owner did submit an application to renew the license, but did so without submitting the required payment. The company's lease for the space has also ended, she said.

Three other liquor licenses were not renewed, including those previously held by S6 at 1550 Hancock St., Len Senn at 1554 Hancock St. and Imperial Terrace at 105 Sea St.

In other business on Jan. 7, the Board of License Commissioners:

Granted a one-day beer and wine license to the United First Parish Church, 1306 Hancock St., for its annual fundraiser, which is scheduled for Feb. 8 between 6 and 10 p.m. The event will include a chili cook-off and silent auction.

Approved the transfer of the retail beer and wine license previously held by the Big Y located at 475 Hancock St. to 99 Ranch Market, which is moving into the same location. The new grocery store is set to open this week, though it could be several months before the state Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission approves the transfer of the beer and wine license.

Granted a cabaret license to The Pour Yard at 208 Washington St. Edward Fleming, the attorney representing restaurant owner Mark DiBona, said the cabaret license would be used mostly for acoustic music and could also be used for comedians and political events. Inspectional Services Director Jay Duca, who recused himself from the board's vote, said DiBona would also need zoning approval to receive the cabaret license because Duca's 2017 finding allowing The Pour Yard to open included a condition barring the restaurant from getting a cabaret license.

Quincy 400 Visionary Community Meeting Jan. 21 At The Kennedy Center

The Quincy community is invited Tuesday, Jan. 21, to participate in interactive activities to further explore initiatives and goals for the year 2025, Quincy's 400th anniversary.

The city has engaged the community with surveys, neighborhood meetings and focus groups. This event will expand upon what city leaders have learned during the first year of these discussions. Past participants and new members are welcome to attend.

"Our Quincy 400 community planning initiative is a great opportunity for residents to get involved in the future of our city," said Mayor Thomas Koch. "I am grateful for all the input to date and look forward to shaping some of these thoughts into future planning. Next Tuesday's meeting will move us forward with that effort."

In 2025, Quincy will celebrate the 400th anniversary of its settlement. To mark this historic year, Koch and the city are leading this community planning effort focusing on six categories in the community including Education, Health and Wellness, Capital Assets and Transportation, History, Arts and Culture and Economic Growth and Tourism. At the direction of the mayor, the Quincy 400 Committee has established six Mayoral Advisory Committees based on each category comprised of individuals from municipal government, community and business organizations and dedicated citizens.

The City welcomes the community's participation in this event to be held at the Kennedy Center, 440 E. Squantum St. from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. Representatives from each group will be present at the meeting as well as the Quincy 400 Committee.

O'Donnell: 'People Want To Live In Quincy'

well-run and they try to be forward thinking on a lot of issues. It doesn't just happen. Some of it is economic factors and some of it is the hard work of the managers of the city – the mayor and the City Council – to keep working on issues to make Quincy an attractive place to live."

O'Donnell said other Norfolk County communities that are in-demand include Brookline, Needham and Wellesley, in part because of their proximity to Boston, and his hometown of Norwood.

"You have a lot of communities that seem to be mirroring what Quincy is going through," he stated.

The average sales price for all Quincy properties – commercial and residential – decreased by 20 percent between 2018 and 2019; the average sales price for 2019 was $576,678. The total sales volume for commercial and residential decreased 24 percent from 2018 to 2019; the total sales volume was $771 million last year.

O'Donnell noted, however, that the 2018 numbers were impacted by the sale of the Quincy Marriott hotel for $80 million in January of that year and a pair of $64.2 million apartment complex transactions that June.

While the number of deeds recorded at the registry changed little between 2018 and 2019, there was an uptick in the final quarter of last year compared to the same quarter the prior year.

In the last three months of 2019, 4,935 deeds were recorded countywide, compared to 4,464 recorded in the same period of 2018. The number of deeds filed for Quincy properties increased to 625 in the last quarter of 2019 compared to the 557 recorded during the same three-month span in 2018.

"It certainly was a busy quarter. Sales were up," O'Donnell said. "People want to live in these towns."

"The brokers say if they get a listing, it's going to sell," he added. "It's just they wish they had more listings."

O'Donnell noted Beacon Hill lawmakers voted to increase filing fees for most documents at the state's registries of deeds, except for homestead declarations, starting Jan. 1, with the additional revenue going to community preservation funding.

"It motivated people to get in before Dec. 31," he said. "Typically, December can be a slow month...but it was busy right through."

The average sales price for Quincy properties, residential and commercial, in the fourth quarter of last year was $668,196, up 24 percent from the same quarter in 2018. The total sales volume during the final quarter of 2019 was $253 million, up 29 percent from the period in 2018.

The number of foreclosures continued to decrease last year in both the county and in Quincy.

There were 146 foreclosure deeds – the final step in the foreclosure process – filed countywide in 2019, down from 221 in 2018. There were 14 foreclosure deeds filed for Quincy properties in 2019, down from 22 the prior year.

The number of notices to foreclose, the first step in the process, likewise decreased. Countywide, 619 such notices were filed in 2018, which dropped to 463 last year. In Quincy, the number of notices to foreclose went from 61 in 2018 to 43 in 2019.

O'Donnell said homeowners at risk of foreclosure can reach out to a pair of Quincy-based non-profit organizations, Quincy Community Action Programs and NeighborWorks Housing Solutions, for counseling.

"You're lucky here in Quincy," he said. "You have the Quincy Community Action Programs here. That is a non-profit social-service agency that helps people in so many ways...one of the ways they help people in Quincy and across the county, because we've partnered up with them, is for people who are struggling with foreclosure. You have a non-profit agency like Quincy Community Action Programs and you also have NeighborWorks Housing Solutions, which has a presence here in Quincy, and they give help to people who are struggling with foreclosure."

"If any of your readers are facing economic difficulties paying their mortgage, they should reach out immediately to these groups and get the help."

Both organizations offer their services in Quincy and other nearby communities, O'Donnell said; the Attorney General's Office also has resources available to residents.

When it comes to the property market for 2020, O'Donnell said inventory, or lack thereof, will continue to be a major factor.

"There are so many factors," he said of this year's real estate market. "First of all, the discussion we just had on the continuing challenges with housing inventory, especially starter residences. I don't see that getting better. Housing in general is a big issue here in the Boston metropolitan area, in Massachusetts and some would say across the country."

"Anecdotally, the brokers are saying we need more listings. I see that as still being a factor. Housing construction just doesn't seem to be keeping up with demand."

National and international events will also shape the market.

"There could be a potential slowdown in economic growth, which could affect demand and supply. We'll see there. I did get a degree in economics, but I do not profess to be an economist," O'Donnell said.

"International events could affect the economy.

The presidential election upcoming could affect the economic. Clearly, the actions of the Federal Reserve have an impact on real estate sales – interest rates going up, interest rates going down. Right now, it seems to be a relatively low-interest-rate environment and it seems that is going to continue for a little bit anyway, and then it is really up to the Federal Reserve."

In addition to recording various real estate documents, O'Donnell's office also offers a consumer notification service to alert residents of potential fraud. Residents can sign up for the service online at norfolkdeeds.org or over the phone by calling 781-461-6101.

Once residents sign up for the notifications, they receive an email any time a document is filed in their name at the registry.

"Any time a document gets touched at the registry or recorded in the name of a William O'Donnell, I get an email," O'Donnell said. "Sometimes it's William J. O'Donnell – I'm William P. O'Donnell – I look it up, it has nothing to do with me, great."

"Why do you sign up? Well, I could get that email notice that says on this date, this document was recorded, and I look it up and it's a deed to my house – but I didn't sign that deed – or it's a mortgage on my property," he explained. "It doesn't INVENTORY LEVELS, said Norfolk County Register of Deeds William O'Donnell, will continue to be a major factor in the local and county real estate market this year. "Brokers are saying we need more listings. I see that as still being a factor. Housing construction just doesn't seem to be keeping up with demand," O'Donnell said in a recent interview.

prevent the fraud, but you can take steps to limit the damage from the fraud."

O'Donnell said residents should also be wary of any company offering access to registry documents for more than what they would cost to get from the registry itself.

"We've seen in Norfolk County deed scams where people get solicited for anywhere from $60 to $86 to get you a copy of your deed," he said. "When we have office hours here in Quincy, we certify the deed free for people, so people shouldn't be paying anywhere from $60 to $86."

"Come to the Registry of Deeds. Typically, it would cost $2, but when we're out doing outreach events...you can come in and we will certify it for nothing."

Winter Street Apartments Approved

By SCOTT JACKSON

A non-profit agency's request to build a three-story building with 18 studio apartments on Winter Street in Quincy Point received the greenlight from the city's Planning Board.

NeighborWorks Housing Solutions, which is based out of Quincy, proposed constructing the new building at 54-56 Winter St. The parcels, which include 20,000 square feet of land in a Business B zoning district, are now home to four multi-family homes that include a total of nine apartments and 20 bedrooms, according to Robert Corley, the executive director of NeighborWorks.

The organization currently owns those four houses and rents them to low-income residents. The homes require renovation, Corley said, and it makes more sense to construct the new building than it would to overhaul the existing structures.

"They need renovation. To renovate them in any significant way – with the type of structure they are and the layout they are in – doesn't make a lot of sense," he said.

"We are asking for permission to raze those properties and develop a smaller, more efficient – from a management perspective, but also from an energy consumption perspective – property to replace these units."

The new building would continue to house low-income residents from Quincy and other communities. NeighborWorks will partner with Father Bill's and Main-Spring to provide counseling and other services, including life skills training, to the building's residents.

NeighborWorks had initially proposed building a 20-car parking lot next to the new building. Corley however, said residents of the new building were unlikely to own vehicles and Gregory Galvin, the Planning Board's vice chairman, suggested the number of parking spaces could be reduced to 18 with additional green space added.

"I'm not a big fan of asphalt," Galvin said. "I understand you don't want to have too few parking spaces, but if you are never going to use 20 parking spaces, landscaping is a much better use."

The board, in approving the proposal, did grant NeighborWorks permission to reduce the size of the parking lot to 18 spaces.

Ward 2 Councillor Brad Croall, the neighborhood's ward councillor, spoke in favor of the proposal. He said the city needs more affordable housing.

"When we think about diversity in housing stock in the city, and this is just my own opinion, I think we need to do better with providing affordable...opportunities for people to live," Croall said. "I really think that's an area the city needs to improve and here is an opportunity."

Croall said NeighborWorks has proven track record in the area; the organization was responsible for Kendrigan Place and Winter Gardens, both of which are on Winter Street, and The Watson, which is located nearby on East Howard Street.

"I know NeighborWorks to be nothing but top-shelf and their portfolio up and down Winter Street and along East Howard Street speaks to that. They put their money into their projects. They are serving a constituency that I think the city needs to focus on more than it is," Croall said.

"I think it is a good project, they are going to improve the neighborhood and socially I think it is the right thing to do."

Norfolk County Real Estate Market Ups, Downs In 2019

The 2019 real estate market in Norfolk County saw some ups and downs characterized by flat residential and commercial property sales, but on the bright side there was a large spike in the number of mortgage documents recorded due to low interest rates.

"During 2019, a total of 18,325 residential and commercial real estate sales transactions were recorded, resulting in a modest 1% increase compared to the previous year. However, the total real estate dollar sales, again both residential and commercial, actually fell 6% to $9.2 billion," said Norfolk County Register of Deeds William O'Donnell. "The average real estate sales transaction price, combining both residential and commercial sales, was $807,730, a decrease of 4% from the previous year."

O'Donnell noted there was a total of 150,899 land documents recorded at the Registry during 2019, a 7% increase compared to the previous year. "Much of the land document recording increase in 2019," noted O'Donnell, "was attributed to the 21% increase seen in the number of mortgages recorded, including mortgage refinances and home equity loans. Specifically, a total of 29,740 mortgages were recorded during the year versus 24,504 recorded in 2018. Total mortgage financing actually saw a slight 1% dip coming in at $17.6 billion for the year."

Last year saw Norfolk County property owners continue to avail themselves of the protections provided by the Homestead Act. A total of 12,546 Homesteads were recorded, a 4% increase from 2018. O'Donnell again spoke about the importance of having Homestead protection.

"A Homestead provides limited protection against the forced sale of a homeowner's primary residence to satisfy unsecured debt up to $500,000. For more information about the Homestead, including information on what is and is not covered, please consult the Registry's website www.norfolkdeeds.org," O'Donnell said.

The 2019 calendar year also saw encouraging signs relative to foreclosure activity. A total of 146 foreclosure deeds were filed in Norfolk County last year compared to 221 in 2018, a significant 34% decrease. Additionally, Notice to Foreclose Mortgages, the first step in the foreclosure process, decreased by 24.3%.

"While this is good news, we must always remember even one foreclosure is one too many," O'Donnell said.

Specifically, for those who are struggling paying their mortgage, the Registry continues to work in partnership with Quincy Community Action Programs, 617-479-8181 x376 and NeighborWorks Housing Solutions at 508-587-0950. These organizations can provide direction to homeowners who have received a Notice to Foreclose Mortgage document. A third option is to contact the Massachusetts Attorney General's Consumer Advocacy and Response Division (CARD) at 617-727-8400.

"Last year's sluggish real estate market can be attributed in part to low residential real estate inventory," O'Donnell said. "Until we see increases in available housing stock, property sales will likely remain stagnant. On the bright side, continuing low interest rates should keep the lending market an attractive option for consumers when it comes to paying for capital improvements and other big ticket items. However, we should keep a close eye on the Federal Reserve and interest rates, along with international events to see how these issues impact the economy."

The Norfolk County Registry of Deeds is located at 649 High St. in Dedham.

The Registry is a resource for homeowners, title examiners, mortgage lenders, municipalities and others with a need for secure, accurate, accessible land record information. All land record research information can be found on the Registry's website www.norfolkdeeds.org.

Residents in need of assistance can call the Registry of Deeds Customer Service Center at (781) 461-6101, or email registerodonnell@norfolkdeeds.org.

Quincy Fire Chief Jack Cadegan Retiring This Month

cy Fire Department as a firefighter in 1985 at the age of 30. He had been a carpenter and taught night school prior to joining the department, and credited his late father, Frank, for encouraging him to become a firefighter.

"He was smart enough to see that I might enjoy this job - it might be a good thing for me," Cadegan said when he was promoted to fire chief. "I was 30 at the time, so I already had a profession, and I'm so glad I listened to him. He knew something I didn't know. I always say the older I get, the smarter he becomes."

Cadegan spent the first 15 years of his career on an engine company, and then was assigned to Ladder 2 in Wollaston. In a January 2019 interview, the fire chief said it was his wife, Karen, who encouraged him to take a promotional exam, which led him to becoming a lieutenant in 2007.

"My first 15 years was basically on an engine company, which I enjoyed, but then a good friend of mine was retiring, and I got his spot on Ladder 2 up in Wollaston and I loved it. I very much loved working on a ladder company - the whole search and rescue thing and ventilation, being up on the roof," Cadegan said at the time.

"I probably would still be there, but my wife made a good point. As I got older and guys were starting to retire, she was the one who kind of mentioned 'what about taking the promotional exam,' which I didn't want any part of. I loved working with the guys that I worked with - why would I leave? She basically said, 'you're all getting older, guys are going to be retiring and moving on.' She was absolutely right."

Cadegan was promoted to captain in 2011 and deputy chief in 2014.

City Clerk Nicole Crispo announced Cadegan's upcoming retirement at the Jan. 7 meeting of the Board of License Commissioners. "We are sorry you aren't going to be on our board anymore," Crispo said. "We will miss you, but we wish you the very best in your retirement. Congratulations."

Cadegan thanked his fellow board members for their support.

"You've been wonderful to me, all of you," he said. "I appreciate it."

On Friday, Jan. 3, at approximately 10:40 p.m., Officer Fitzgerald along with his K9 partner and Officer Kaes were dispatched to Robert Street for a possible restraining order violation.

The female victim/caller said during the "911" call that her former boyfriend (suspect) was standing across the street from her house glaring towards her home. After giving a clothing description, she was advised by Communications to lock her doors and keep watch on the suspect as officers were responding.

Upon arrival, Officer Fitzgerald observed a male standing across the street from the victim's home wearing a dark hooded sweatshirt the caller had stated in her description. The officer exited his cruiser, keeping the suspect on the sidewalk with trash barrels separating them. When asked what his name was, the suspect sternly said, "Get away from me" as he continued to stare at the victim's house, not looking at the officer at all. Officer Fitzgerald asked the suspect to confirm his name and he forcefully responded, "Ya - but it doesn't matter who I am. Get away from me."

The officer, concerned the suspect appeared to be holding in rage, instructed the suspect to remove his right hand from his pants pocket. The suspect did not move so the officer strongly ordered him to show his hands. The suspect, still staring at the house, angrily said, "Get your flashlight off me."

Concerned for his safety and the failure to cooperate, Officer Fitzgerald took out his pepper spray and again ordered the suspect to take his hand out. When he again failed to follow simple instructions, the officer gave a final warning that pepper spray would be deployed if he didn't cooperate. The suspect then took his hand out of his pants pocket which had an open knife in it.

The officer observed the suspect had a very strong grip on the handle and the blade of the knife was pointing forward. Officer Fitzgerald immediately ordered the suspect to drop the knife as he (the officer) switched from pepper spray to his firearm.

After several commands to do so, the suspect finally dropped the knife. As he dropped the knife, Officer Kaes arrived on scene. Even though the suspect dropped the knife, he continued to refuse to obey commands to move away from the knife, now at his feet.

With his prior defiant behavior and after holding an open knife, Officer Fitzgerald used a defensive tactic front punch, striking the suspect in the face. This caught the suspect off guard, which gave the officers the opportunity to handcuff him. The suspect quickly regained composure and started fighting the officers off.

Officer Fitzgerald then gave him an elbow to the shoulder and two knee strikes to his left hip area which allowed the officers to gain control of him to apply handcuffs. A quick pat-frisk unveiled a sleeve of Fireball whiskey nip bottles in his jacket. There were around six bottles missing from the sleeve.

The suspect, a 48-year-old Quincy resident, was transported to the station for booking on the charges of violation of protective order (stay away 100 yards), assault by dangerous weapon to wit knife and resisting arrest.

Nice Work!

REDUCING "BACKING UP" ACCIDENTS

According to the National Safety Council, one out of four vehicle accidents can be blamed on poor backing techniques. Backing accidents cause 500 deaths and 15,000 injuries per year.

Using the back-up cameras as a tool to assist in moving in reverse is helpful but moving your head left and right extends the range of view so that you can spot someone walking into your path. Many of these accidents occur in a parking lot.

One simple step would be to do the "pull through" in back to back parking spots so that the vehicle is facing out. This eliminates the need to back up.

National Merit Scholars Honored

By TOM GORMAN

The school committee recently honored several North Quincy and Quincy high school students who were named National Merit Commended Scholars.

The students were:

Kaylin Chan, Benjamin DeBisschop, Abigail Der, and Sarah Pillone from North Quincy High School and from Quincy High School, Caitlin Ho, Patrick Rak, Jennifer Segale, and Michalina Weglarzy.

North Quincy High principal Robert Shaw and Quincy High principal Lawrence Taglieri introduced their respective students. Each student received a certificate of commendation.

The students finished in the commended level of the National Merit Scholar Program as a result of their Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test (PSAT). It is administered by the College Board as a qualifier for the National Merit Scholar Program.

"The Commended Scholars are based on PSAT performance taken earlier in their high school career," said Shaw. "They are representing 50,000 out of over 1.5 million, or about 3.5 percent of the top PSAT scores across the country."

The National Merit Scholarship Program recognizes and honors "the academically talented students of the United States... by conducting nationwide academic scholarship programs," states its website. The program also promotes "a wider and deeper respect for learning in general and for exceptionally talented individuals (and) to shine a spotlight on brilliant students, encourage the pursuit of academic excellence at all levels of education (and) to stimulate increased support from individuals and organizations that wish to sponsor scholarships for outstanding scholastic talent."

Although the Commended Scholars do not continue on to the semifinals, some become candidates for scholarships sponsored by businesses, corporations and organizations. There are about 16,000 semifinalists who are the highest scorers and are considered for a National Merit Scholarship.

praised the students for their accomplishments and voiced appreciation to their parents "for your support from prekindergarten all the way up."

Added Taglieri, "I'm very proud of each and every one of these students."

In a related matter, the superintendent notified the committee that 188 seniors of both of the city's high schools have been awarded the John and Abigail Adams Scholarships for scoring in the top 25 percent of their class on the Grade 10 MCAS. The scholarship covers up to eight semesters of tuition at any state college, university or community college and all four University of Massachusetts institutions.

The committee approved several trips including the North Quincy High School and Quincy High School HyperRobotics team to the FRC Robotics New England Championship in West Springfield, April 8 to 10 and Bedford High School in New Hampshire from March 26 to 30, 2; the North Quincy High School Air Force Junior ROTC to New York City York and Hershey, Pennsylvania from April 3 to 7; Atlantic Middle School Grade 8 students to New York City June 4 and 5; and Quincy High School students to Paris, France; Venice Italy; and Lucerne, Switzerland April 16 to 24.

The committee also approved the 2020-21 school year calendar that includes a no school day on the Nov. 3 presidential election day.

Board Welcomes New Member Frank Santoro

By TOM GORMAN

The Quincy School committee has a new look as it welcomed its newest member and elected a new vice chairperson.

During its Jan. 8 organizational meeting, newly elected member Frank Santoro joined returning incumbents Paul Bregoli and Kathryn Hubley as they were sworn-in by committee chairman, Mayor Thomas Koch. The committee unanimously elected Anthony Andronico to serve as vice chairperson, succeeding Emily Lebo, who held the position the past two years.

Santoro was elected last fall to the open School Committee seat that was vacated by James DeAmicis who decided not to seek reelection. DeAmicis, at age 18, was the youngest person to be elected to the school committee when he ran in 2015.

Santoro, a former principal of both Quincy High School and Central Middle School, had served on the school committee more than a decade ago.

Koch said Santoro will bring his experience as an educator and former committee member to the table.

"We look forward to your sage advice and participation on this committee," said Koch.

Nominations were opened for vice chairman. Lebo nominated Andronico, noting that he was elected to the committee just two years ago and brought with him a "unique background and experiences."

"Anthony's degree in political science, his previous work with educational issues with Mass Insight and his current work as State House communication director has served us all very well," she said. "He has been able to quickly grasp Quincy's educational landscape and has brought back State House information on current issues that could impact our schools. He has been instrumental in finding ways to improve our communication with his work on the new (Quincy Public Schools) website that is about to be launched."

Lebo said that above all, Andronico's commitment to the school committee stands out.

"He has been diligent and thorough as he learned to navigate the work of this committee," she said. "Anthony does this with no need for credit. For me, just as important and probably even more importantly, he does it with humor. I really enjoy working with him as a colleague and look forward to his leadership."

In seconding Lebo's nomination, member Douglas Gutro concurred and said he finds Andronico to be "smart, fair, and solution-oriented."

"He understands the nuts and bolts of public policy and has an insatiable curiosity for the issues that come before us and that's benefits all of us," he said.

Gutro said Andronico has already demonstrated leadership skills, such as his spearheading the revamping of the district's website.

"The leadership he has shown on several issues on special education and his commitment to transparency and communication with the website that I think will benefit all Quincy Public School students, parents, and teachers. I just know he will do a tremendous job."

No other nominations were forwarded and on a roll call vote, Andronico was unanimously elected.

In addressing the committee, administrators, elected officials and families in attendance, Andronico thanked his committee colleagues "for putting their faith in me to serve as vice chair for the next two years."

"I want all of you to know that I consider this to be an incredible honor and a position that I do not take lightly," he said. "I'd like to extend my thanks to Mrs. Lebo for her remarkable service as vice chair - it will certainly be a tall task to carry out the duties of the position at the same level as she did. I would also like to welcome Mr. Santoro to the team. I know his 40-plus years of experience and knowledge of public education will add tremendous value to our discussions."

Andronico explained how the importance of city's educational system was instilled in him at an early age. He noted that he, his parents and grandparents, all raised in Quincy, are products of the city's public schools.

"My family and I have always held our education system in the highest regard and considered a Quincy education, and our Quincy teachers, to be a step above the rest," he said. "Having served on this committee for the past two years, I can tell you without a doubt that our system and teachers are even better than I thought. But it's not just our teachers - our paraprofessionals, teachers, assistant principals, principals, Superintendent's Leadership Team, and superintendent - are all truly dedicated to doing their part to help each of our students achieve their fullest potential."

Andronico noted the district being recognized for its educational superiority and accomplishments.

"It is because of that dedication, along with significant financial support from the mayor and city council, that Quincy Public Schools received two major honors in 2019," he said. "We were selected by the Massachusetts Department of Elementary and Secondary Education to be a part of their very first 'promising practice' reviews across the Commonwealth to share our best practices with other districts. Quincy was selected because of improvement in graduation and dropout rates for students with disabilities, economically disadvantaged students, English learners, and African American students."

Andronico also noted the Clifford Marshall Elementary School was "named a National ESEA Distinguished School - one of only 100 schools in the country to receive the distinction - for closing the achievement gap between students for two consecutive years."

He said the district will not rest on its laurels and that the committee will work with the community in developing its proposed new Special Education Learning Center for special needs students.

"While this is good news, we know that we must always strive to build upon the progress we have made and aim even higher," said Andronico. "It is with that spirit in mind that the mayor came to the school committee and the city council with a proposal to build our very own Special Education Learning Center, so that every student in Quincy would be able to receive a top-notch education in their hometown. The programs we place here cannot be rushed, and require significant input from our special education community. As a committee, we have a lot of work ahead of us to ensure this facility is everything it can be and properly serves the needs of our special education students and their families."

Andronico pointed to the district's newest school that opened last year and that attention has turned to other school buildings in need of upgrades.

"Last year, the city opened the new South-West

Mild temperatures near 50 degrees and a light drizzle greeted roughly 30 adults and children who took a plunge in the chilly 40-degree water at the Houghs Neck Maritime Center during the sixth annual Atherton Hough School PTO Polar Plunge Jan. 4th.

The community event is a fundraiser for the PTO to purchase needed equipment for the school. Each participant paid $20 to take a dip and received an "I Survived the 2020 Polar Plunge" T-shirt.

"This is one of our favorite events of the year," said Atherton Hough PTO fundraising committee member Joe Murphy. "Although it's not a big moneymaker, it's a good way for the Houghs Neck community to reach out to the Quincy community at large."

Over the years, the funds raised paid for Chromebooks and alternative seating for the school. The latter gives students with Attention Deficit Hyperactivity Disorder some freedom to move about while participating in class as opposed to a traditional desk and chair.

This year, Murphy said funds will go toward purchasing an outdoor informational sign.

"We're trying to get an LED sign outside the school to advertise events and give information to the community," he said.

After signing in, participants gathered at the water's edge of the Houghs Neck Public Landing in back of the maritime center. They eagerly waited for a countdown and then it was a mad dash into the water. A few briefly swam but the majority of the plungers took a quick dip and headed for shore.

This was the first plunge for Jason Sollinger who was accompanied by his son, Seamus, 4.

"It's not that bad," said Jason said of the water. "It takes your breath away. It wakes you up like waking up after a long night's sleep."

Seamus came prepared for the cold water – he wore a warm onesie.

NATHAN ARONOFF (left) and Kate Urekew were among the 30 brave souls who took part in this year's Houghs Neck "Polar Plunge" behind the Maritime Center off Sea Street Jan. 4.

"He was insulated by his onesie," said Jason.

Asked if he would do it again, Seamus nodded yes.

Nathan Aronoff, 12, a former Atherton Hough student and now a sixth grader at Broad Meadows Middle School, is a veteran of the plunge.

"This is my fourth time," he said. "This was the coldest it's been."

Nathan said he is looking forward to next year.

Lifelong Houghs Neck resident Teri Murphy, who took the dip for the second time, had some advice to deal with the cold water.

"You don't think about it, you just do it," she said.

Her two granddaughters and two children she babysits are Atherton Hough students.

"I did this to contribute towards the school," said Murphy.

It was Houghs Neck native Walter Rollins's first time plunge at the event, but not his first ever. On New Year's Day, he joined the L Street Brownies in South Boston for the annual dip.

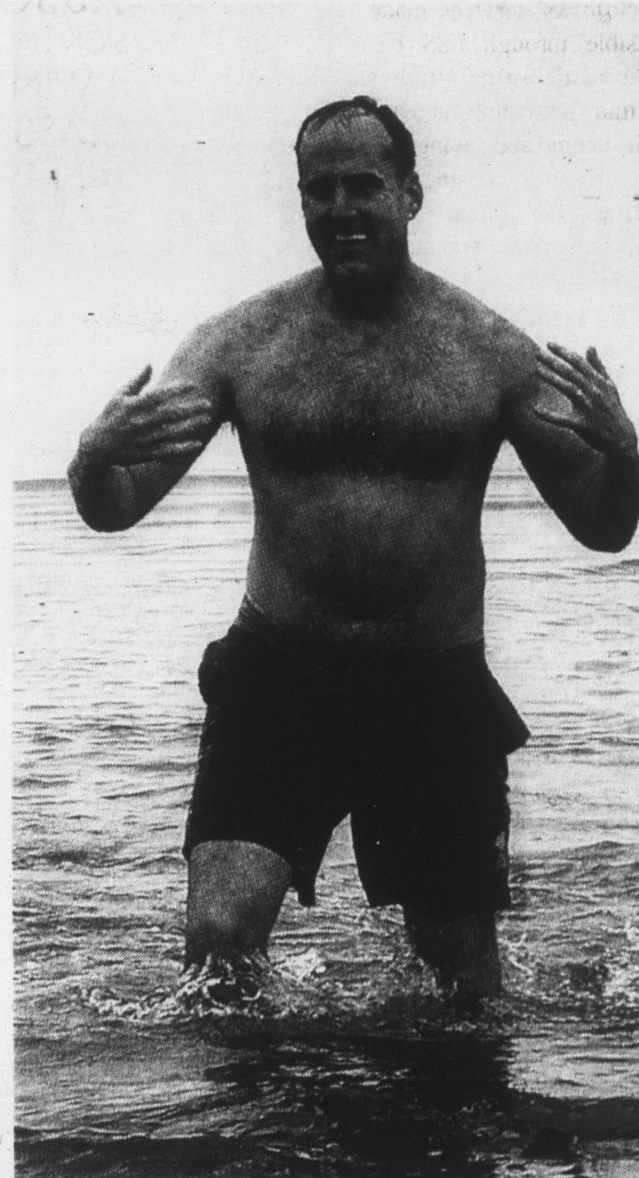

"This is the first time I've done this twice in one year," he said.

Rollins said the weather wasn't all that bad.

"It's nice out here, a nice little crowd," he said, adding, "Hey, it's not zero out."

City Councillor-at-Large Noel DiBona was among those taking the plunge — his son, Tyler, is a first grader at Atherton Hough. He said the event is a great support for the school and the students and a good way to start the new year.

"Looking forward to a great 2020," he said.

As far as the water's 40-degree temperature, DiBona didn't seem phased.

"The water was not too bad," he said, adding, "It actually was refreshing."

This year's plunge was a hat-trick for Atherton Hough alumna, Mikayla Barry, 12, now a Thayer Academy sixth grade student. She said the event is a Houghs Neck custom.

"I have a lot of friends here," she said of her participation. "It's sort of a tradition here."

This was Ward 2 City Councillor Brad Croall's inaugural Houghs Neck plunge.

"It's a great day, it's balmy, and hopefully we raised a bunch of money for the PTO," he said.

Croall said the water was chilly, but the air temperature balanced it out.

Ayers Wants MBTA Construction Projects Mitigation

Quincy Legislator Meets With GM Poftak

State Rep. Bruce Ayers (D - Quincy) recently met with Steve Poftak, general manager of the MBTA, to reiterate his requests for further mitigation on current construction projects.

Ayers said the meeting was productive, and allowed him to express concerns and questions he has heard from constituents.

"There are a lot of people in my district who rely on public transportation," Ayers said. "With examples over the last year of the Red Line not living up to the standards commuters deserve, I wanted to hear directly from GM Poftak on how the MBTA is addressing these concerns."

Ayers said Poftak provided valuable information on how the MBTA plans to move forward with handling multiple construction and upgrade projects along the Red Line in Quincy, and also discussed ongoing studies on how to improve commuter rail service.

Ayers said the meeting gave him the chance to reiterate his request for shuttle bus services between North Quincy Station and Squantum Point Park during the construction at the North Quincy MBTA. In meetings and in written correspondence, Ayers has continually appealed to the MBTA to implement a service similar to the Yankee-bus service utilized during the Wollaston Station construction.

"The MBTA has offered some mitigation plans for this project, but they don't meet the needs of commuters," Ayers said. "My request to the MBTA is that they utilize a bus service to make up for the loss of over 600 parking spaces at the North Quincy Station during the construction project. We have a unique opportunity with the 800 space state-owned parking lot at Squantum Point Park, as well as the potential the area holds for water transportation to Boston."

Aside from easing parking concerns in North Quincy, Ayers also said this could help alleviate traffic congestion on the Neponset Bridge during the morning commute.

Ayers' request was recently supported by a resolution passed unanimously by the Quincy City Council, sponsored by Ward 6 Councillor Bill Harris.

Ayers said he was optimistic after the meeting. "I appreciate the General Manager accommodating my request to meet," Ayers said. "As a legislator, I will continue to work to improve our public transportation and will closely monitor the MBTA's progress. The residents of Quincy deserve a dependable means of public transit, and I will continue to advocate with our transportation officials to make this a reality."

Housing Authority Receives $72,000 Grant

The Quincy Housing Authority recently received a $72,000 federal grant that will be used to fund case-workers who will help residents of public and voucher-assisted housing further their education, gain skills, and build savings.

The grant was awarded from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development's Family Self-Sufficiency (FSS) Program. Program funding helps local public housing authorities to hire service coordinators who work directly with residents to connect them with existing programs and services in the local community. These service coordinators build relationships with networks of local service providers, which provide direct assistance to FSS participants. The broad spectrum of services made possible through FSS enables participating families to find jobs and increase their income and savings.

Thirty-one housing authorities throughout Massachusetts, plus the state itself, were awarded the HUD grants on Jan. 7. The grants total more than $3.5 million.

"As someone who grew up in public housing, I know firsthand the hardships families face who depend on housing subsidies, especially as the cost of living continues to increase," U.S. Rep. Stephen F. Lynch said in a statement announcing the grant.

"I am very pleased to see all these public housing agencies receive this funding and I believe it is imperative we continue to invest in these programs that provide those struggling with the education and assistance necessary to help improve their lives and become self-sufficient. I am grateful to Senators Elizabeth Warren and Ed Markey for the work that they have done to help make this happen."

Presidents Hockey Ices PS For First Win, 6-2

By TOM JOYCE

Put a win on the board for the Quincy High boys' hockey team.

The Presidents put together three strong quarters of hockey on offense, defense and in net as they came up with a dominant 6-2 win over the Plymouth

South Panthers at Quincy Youth Arena last Saturday night. With the win, the first of the season for the young Presidents team, they improved to 1-6-2.

"We talked about playing three periods and starting on time. It was a long time coming, we just didn't know when it would come," Presidents' head coach Ted Walsh Jr. said of the victory. "The kids stuck with it. They've been working hard at practice.

"Everybody's been able to keep it positive and I think that makes the difference," Walsh continued.

"We talk about playing for each other and I think tonight was a great example of playing for each other.

"They just looked more determined tonight," he added. "Sometimes you can just see as a coach when the team is feeling it, and they were tonight. They were communicating which is a huge part of the game. They wanted to outwork the other team. You've got to give Plymouth credit. They kept coming, but my boys just worked really hard and got what they deserved. It was a great night all-around for us."

Plymouth South struck first in the contest, putting up a goal 1:13 into the first period. The Presidents recovered from there, however, going on to dominate for the rest of the game.

Midway through the first period, freshman forward Will Martin tied it up at one apiece on a goal assisted by his classmate and line mate Cam Quigley.

About two minutes into the second period, the Presidents took the lead on a goal by sophomore forward Cooper Hernon. Sophomore forwards Daniel Pakkala and Joseph Hennessy had assists on the score. Then, with 7:59 left in the second, sophomore defenseman Zach Galligan gave the Presidents a 3-1 lead on a goal assisted by senior captains and forwards John O'Brien and Thomas MacPherson.

Although Plymouth South came within a goal and made it 3-2 with 13:47 remaining in the third period, the Presidents offense kept producing in the final 10 minutes of the game, preserving their lead alongside tough defense.

Senior forward Nick Buonopane doubled the Presidents lead with 9:50 remaining on a goal assisted by senior forwards Ryan Bergin and Nick Buonopane.

MacPherson added a goal to make it 5-2 Presidents with 2:48 remaining in the game. O'Brien and senior defenseman Joseph Murphy had assists on the goal. Plus, Martin added an empty netter with 50 seconds left. Senior captain and forward Ryan Quirk had the assist on the goal.

Sophomore goalie Daniel Freeman picked up the win in net for the Presidents, the first of his varsity career.

Walsh called the victory a team win, impressed with the play he received from all of his players who took the ice.

"That's a good thing as far as we're concerned," he said. "We don't want a one man team. We want everyone to contribute, and that's what we had tonight. Everyone was pulling the rope in EARLIER IN THE WEEK, North Quincy boys hockey player Connor Kulig was seriously injured in a game against Scituate. QHS displayed a hockey shirt on their bench with Connor's number during their game last Saturday night against Plymouth South at Quincy Youth Arena. Kulig fell awkwardly into the boards and suffered a neck injury. He has undergone surgery and is making progress according to the team and family. A fund has been established to help pay for Connor's medical care. Over $35,000 had been raised by Tuesday afternoon. The goal is $50,000. the same direction."

Heading into the game against Plymouth South, Walsh said his team had been practicing well in preparation for it.

"They had a positive attitude and knew they weren't gonna quit," he said. "They knew it was coming. We talk about consistently playing three periods. This was the first night we played three solid periods. We still have a lot of work to do, but it was a step in the right direction for sure."

"Now they have to realize we can beat anybody when we play three solid periods," he added. "They saw it before their own eyes and obviously they're very excited about it. We're going to get back to work on Monday and be ready for our next game."

During the game, the Presidents hung a jersey featuring No. 16 on it to pay respect to North Quincy High's Connor Kulig, who was hospitalized after suffering an injury during his team's game against Scituate on Jan. 8.

"We talked to the boys about it on Friday," Walsh said. "Our thoughts and prayers are with him. We've offered any help we can to the North Quincy community, the hockey team and the Kulig family in particular. The boys all played hockey together growing up and are friends. Connor means a lot to all of us."

Hellmuth Scores 23 Points For NQ

The Red Raider girls basketball team resumed Patriot league play last week and finished with three losses.

Playing at power house Whitman-Hanson, North had few answers as they were handled easily by the Panthers, 72-32. The Panthers raced to a 50-14 lead at halftime and never looked back. The lone bright spot for the Red and Black was a career performance from senior captain Amanda Hellmuth who had a career high 23 points, including 5 three pointers. Hellmuth scored 17 of North's 18 second half points.

North then traveled to Marshfield where they dropped a 50-34 contest to the Rams. Junior Fallon Hobin led the Red Raiders with 11 points while Hellmuth chipped in with 7. Ashley Caldwell played a solid game with 6 points.

North wrapped up the week visiting Plymouth South coming away on the short end of a 43-27 result. Freshman Taylor Kernen got the start in place of Hobin who was home with an illness. Turnovers plagued the visitors the entire night as they found themselves behind 19-8 after a quarter. Hellmuth and senior captain Isabella Thong combined for all 8 of the Red Raider points. North did outscore the Panthers 15-14 in the second half. Alexa Radzik and Stephanie Huang each hit three pointers while Thong added 4 to her game high 8.

North hosted the Scituate Sailors Tuesday and visits Pembroke on Friday at 6:30 p.m.

Quincy-North Quincy Girls Hockey Bows To Pembroke

By TOM JOYCE

Down a goalie, the Quincy-North Quincy High girls hockey co-op faced a tough Pembroke Titans team at home last Saturday night.

Both sides enjoyed some success offensively in the bout. However, the older Pembroke team got the majority of those goals. Ultimately, the co-op fell 8-4 and to 0-6-2 on the season.

"I was really happy with my first line," QNQ head coach Jeff Craig said. "When they play unselfish hockey, they're great. On one of Maggie Lynch's goals, Orla O'Driscoll could've tried for a break-away, but she had a beautiful pass and got the assist. Stuff like that, coming up to the neutral zone with speed, they were making nice touch passes and that was a huge positive in this game.

"They're talented. As long as they use each other, they can put the puck in the net.

"We talked before the game about how this isn't a game that you're not gonna work hard in," he added. "There's people who want to be out there who aren't. They've battled all year. We're up against it with the numbers, skating about nine SUPPORT FOR CONNOR - Before last Saturday's game at Quincy Youth Arena, the combined QHS/NQHS girls hockey team lined up as a gesture of support for injured NQHS hockey player Connor Kulig. through what he's going through and for what she has to be going through, it has to be tough," Craig said of Kulig. "I couldn't imagine it at my age, and I couldn't at their age. She's a great kid and he's a great kid. He's going to get through this."

During the game, QNQ hung a No. 16 jersey up on their bench for Kulig.

Against Pembroke, QNQ turned to their backup goalie to make the start: freshman Hailey Concannon. It was her first ever varsity start, and it came against a team that was 5-2-1 through eight games played. On top of that, she just started playing goalie four months ago.

That said, Craig was pleased with the way she handled the opportunity.

"She showed some things," he said of Concannon. "She made some nice plays out there. Of course it's going to be tough for a young kid playing a good team, but it's good for her to get some experience."

In the early going, QNQ took the lead. With 9:36 left in the first period, freshman forward Maggie Lynch pushed in a goal on the right side of the net, tying the game at one apiece. Then, 40 seconds later, she faked right and went left as she broke past the defense and scored again, giving the team a 2-1 advantage. A few minutes later, Pembroke tied the game back up and would not surrender the lead again in the contest.

Lynch scored a team-high three goals for QNQ against Pembroke, upping her goal total to 18 in eight games.

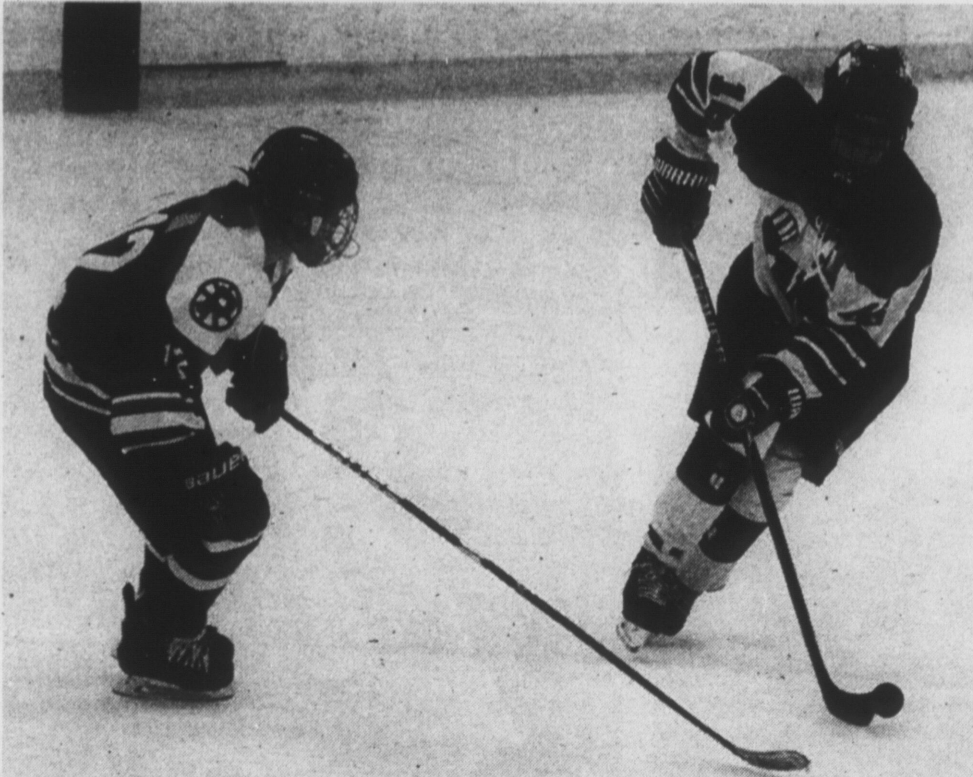

"It's been really good," she said of making the adjustment to varsity hockey. "All of my teammates are doing well and have really helped me out throughout the season. The older kids are really good leaders. They teach the younger kids well."

Morrisette Baseball Meeting

Morrisette Baseball will have its annual player/parent meeting Wednesday, Jan. 15.

This meeting is for anyone who plans on trying out for Morrisette Junior or Senior Legion baseball. The meeting will be held at the Morrisette Post, 83-85 Liberty St., at 7 p.m.

Topics will be: winter hitting, tryout dates and times, league schedule, and the state tournament that the senior team is hosting. Players and or parents should attend this meeting. Any questions contact Steve Maze at Morrisetteball@aol.com.

Quincy Sun Photos/Larry Carched

Sophomore forward Orla O'Driscoll had a goal and an assist against Pembroke.

QNQ has enjoyed its share of success offensively this season. Through eight games, they averaged 3.75 goals per contest.

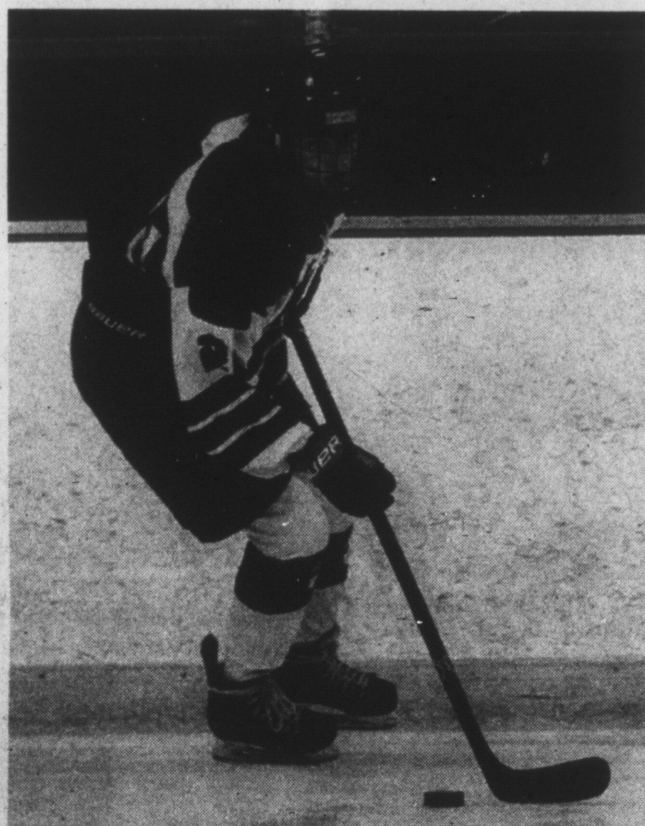

Defensively, Craig said freshman Maggie Dineen, a second-year varsity player, has been impressive so far.

"We only skate three on defense, so she's someone we rely on a lot," he said. "She's one of the better defenders around. She's really been a leader back there."

One challenge that QNQ has endured this season is a small roster. Typically, they skate nine players — six forwards and three on defense.

A young team, they do not have any seniors on their roster and they have more eighth graders (two) than they have juniors (one).

That said, the team will most likely have more skaters in the future, and their concern at the moment is developing the ones they have.

"I told them, 'I don't care if we lose, I just want us to be playing the right way, building good habits and getting better,'" Craig said. "We're a young team. We know there's some wins on the horizon, we've just gotta get there."

North Quincy Boys Hoop Tops Plymouth South, 57-56

By TOM JOYCE

Call it a fourth-quarter comeback for the North Quincy High boys' basketball team.

The Red Raiders overcame a five-point deficit after three quarters by playing tough defense against the Plymouth South Panthers at home last Friday night. The game came down to the final seconds, but the Red Raiders held on for a 57-56 victory. With the win, they improved to 5-3 on the season.

"I liked the way we persevered," Red Raiders head coach Kevin Barrett said. "We lapsed in those first four minutes of the third period out of the gate, but I thought we weathered the storm. We had a good counter to their knockout punch, so I'm happy with what we did there."

"I think we realized the importance of this game," he added. "We had two tough games against Whitman-Hanson and Marshfield, but we did what we needed to in order to get a much-needed win. 5-3 sounds a lot better than 4-4."

After three quarters, the Red Raiders trailed 52-47. They struggled in the third quarter, getting outscored 25-11, after going into halftime with a 36-27 lead.

However, they played tough defense, limiting Plymouth South to four points in the final eight minutes of the game as they went 2-for-11 from the field shooting.

In the first four minutes of the quarter, Plymouth South did not score at all, but Agu Ugwu (14 points, 8 rebounds) steadily helped close the deficit. He made a basket with 6:08 to make it a three-point game. With five minutes left, he sank a free throw, making it a two-point game. Then, with 3:52 remaining, he made a layup, tying it up at 52 apiece.

The Red Raiders took the lead on a free throw from Colby St. Marie (11 points, 10 rebounds) with 3:23 left in the game.

Although Plymouth South hit a jump shot with 3:08 left to retake the lead, they missed a pair of free throws shortly thereafter, presenting the Red Raiders with an opportunity. Ugwu capitalized with 2:23 remaining, hitting a pair of free throws, putting the team up by a point.

Then, Plymouth South missed a layup, St. Marie jumped up to grab the rebound and set up a possession which ended with a Steve Dalla (19 points, 4 assists) layup. This put the Red Raiders up 57-54 with 1:32 left in the contest, forcing a Plymouth South timeout.

Plymouth South hit a layup with 1:17 remaining, making the score 57-56.

The Red Raiders had a hard time scoring in the final stretch of the game with an airball and a pair of missed free throws. However, a traveling call and an offensive foul hindered Plymouth South's offensive progress, as did the Red Raiders' tough defense.

"That was key," Barrett said of his team's fourth-quarter defense. "They did a nice job in the third of shooting us out of our zone. Then, we went back to man-to-man and not only did we defend well and contest well, we rebounded shots well."

Although they needed a comeback to win the contest, the Red Raiders got off to a strong start, beginning the game on a 7-2 scoring run in the first 78 seconds.

Dalla had five of those points, one coming on a layup and another coming on a three-pointer. Ugwu had the other, making a basket from two-point range.

"I thought we executed well," Barrett said. "It's something we haven't done in three weeks. I think we finally got back to that. I thought we executed at key points to score."

This run gave the team a slight cushion, and they led 17-14 after the first quarter.

The team continued to shine offensively in the second quarter, putting up 19 points as they went into halftime with a 36-27 lead.

Aaron Huang stood out in the second quarter, scoring all nine of his points in the eight-minute span. Six of those points came on a pair of three-pointers. He also made a free throw and hit a layup.

However, Plymouth South quickly erased that lead in the second half. In the first 90 seconds of it, they made three three-pointers, followed by a pair of free throws, tying the game at 38 apiece with 6:13 left in the third quarter.

Plymouth South's momentum continued and they led 52-47 after three quarters.

During the victory, the Red Raiders used just six players, all of whom played significant minutes and did not let fatigue impact their play late in the game.

"I think it speaks to the kind of shape that they're in and their desire to go out there and win basketball games. It took six guys to do it tonight. Maybe it's a different story next week. Everybody has to be prepared when their number is called and when they get that opportunity."

The Red Raiders visited Scituate Tuesday and will host Pembroke Friday night at 7 p.m.

Quincy Girls Basketball Downs Hanover For 5th Win

The Quincy High School girls varsity basketball team earned a 59-53 road win against Hanover last Friday night.

With the win, the Presidents improved to 5-4, 3-1 Patriot League.

Offensively Quincy was led by senior captain Allison McMorro's 15 points and senior captain Juliana Tracey's 12 points.

Sophomore Antenella Ibrahim pitched in with four points off the bench for Quincy and senior captain Grace Hobin contributed strong all around play on both ends of the floor.

For Hanover, Dani Tilden scored 20 points including five three-pointers and Emily Flynn had 21 points with 3 threepointers and 16 points in the first half.

Both teams came out hitting shots in this one with Quincy leading heading into the half 31-27 despite an incredible shooting performance by Hanover's Emily Flynn who had 16 points already at the break. Quincy tightened up the defense on her in the second half but Dani Tilden picked up where Flynn left off scoring 15 of her 20 in the second half.

The outside shooting of the Indians kept it close throughout as Ally McMorro's steady scoring paced the Presidents. Juliana Tracey, Grace Hobin and Allyson McMorro all connected on their free throws in the fourth to keep Quincy ahead.

Quincy, winners of four straight games, hosted Pembroke Tuesday night and will visit Plymouth South Friday night.

Middle School, a state-of-the-art building that will allow our teachers to expand their teaching methods and lead to increased student growth and achievement," he said. "With this major item completed, we have turned our attention to other current buildings that are in need of a boost. We intend to resubmit our Statement of Interest to the Massachusetts School Building Authority seeking funding to rebuild the Squantum Elementary School - a building that hasn't received substantial renovations in 45 years and is in need of an update."

Andronico said work is underway on several initiatives.

"Of course, most of our work focuses on programs within our buildings and policies that affect our community," he said. "In the next month, we will be rolling out a new QPS website so information is more easily accessible for students, parents, teachers, and staff. Recommendations to revamp our homework policy to reflect the best practices of today are nearly finalized. We've set goals to: identify barriers to post-secondary success so we may better prepare our students; expand our staff recruiting methods to increase applicant diversity; and develop a leadership profile for the superintendent position - just in case Dr. (Richard) DeCristofaro decides he'd like to move on after an unprecedented 19-year tenure."

Andronico assured the city that there will always be open communication and welcomed input to make Quincy's public schools the very best.

"To our students, staff, parents, and taxpayers, we are always available to listen to your concerns and feedback so that we may continue to build an education system that meets the needs of everyone in our community," he said. "We know it's important that we continue to push our students to achieve in the classroom, however, we know it is equally important that we push them to grow as individuals outside the classroom. Our ultimate goal is to graduate individuals who will work to make Quincy

- and the world - a better place."

The committee appointed the following members to chair subcommittees:

Santoro to chair the Facilities, Transportation & Security; Andronico to chair the Budget & Finance and Rules, Post Audit & Oversight; Gutro to chair the Athletics & Wellness; Bregoli to chair the Policy; Hubley to chair Special Education; and Lebo to chair the Teaching & Learning.

The committee also re-appointed Laura Owens as clerk and Quincy School Supt. Dr. Richard DeCristofaro as secretary.

ENC's Will Zarges Named NECC Rookie Of Week

Senior Garrett Crandell (Bristol, Tenn.) and freshman Will Zarges (Quincy) of the Eastern Nazarene College men's basketball team have each collected New England Collegiate Conference weekly accolades, the league office announced Monday.

Crandell picked up his second NECC Player of the Week nod of the season while Zarges was tabbed the NECC Rookie of the Week for the first time.

The duo helped the Lions post a pair of victories to open conference play and improve to 6-8 overall.

Crandell averaged 24.5 points and 6.5 rebounds per contest in the two-game span. In Eastern Nazarene's 78-64 win over Becker, he netted 26 points and grabbed eight boards. Crandell capped off the week with 23 points, five rebounds and three assists as the Lions edged Elms 76-75. The senior shot 61.3% from the floor, 62.5% from three-point range, and 85.7% from the charity stripe on the week.

Zarges, a 2018 graduate of Quincy High School and former captain of the Presidents' boys basketball team, poured in a career-high 10 points in Eastern Nazarene's win over Elms. The rookie connected on 4-of-5 from the field and converted 2-of-3 free throw attempts while also adding one rebound.

Looking ahead, Eastern Nazarene continues conference competition on the road at Dean Jan. 15.

a state agency, the MBTA is not required to follow the normal permitting procedure for this project, which would have required a vote by the City Council. As such, the normal public hearings before the City Council, Zoning Board or Planning Board will not be a part of this process.

"I encourage anyone with questions or concerns to attend this community meeting, as it may be the only opportunity we get to tell the MBTA how we feel about their plan."

Joe Pesaturo, a spokesman for the MBTA, said a new bus facility is needed in Quincy and the Lowe's site is the only one under consideration in the city.

"The MBTA has informed the city it is considering the former Lowe's site. No other sites in the city are under consideration at this time," Pesaturo said in a December statement.

"If the decision is made to move forward with the property off of Burgin Parkway, the MBTA would work to site a state-of-the-art bus maintenance and storage facility at that location. It would replace the existing antiquated bus garage on Hancock Street. Such a facility is necessary in order to provide the Quincy area with reliable and convenient bus service for decades to come. Before any construction could take place, the proposed project would be subjected to applicable regulatory processes for building, environmental review and environmental permitting."

The Lowe's store closed in early 2019, one of 51 locations across the United States and Canada the home-improvement chain shuttered at the time. The location at 599 Burgin Pkwy. includes 12.81 acres of land in a planned-urban-development zoning district, which makes the City Council the special permit granting authority for the site.

The council had approved the construction of the Lowe's store in 2008.

OBITUARIES

Faydra D. Clark, 46

Visiting hours for Faydra Diane Clark, 46, of Weymouth, were held Monday in Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy.

Ms. Clark died Jan. 5.

Born in Quincy, she was the daughter of Richard Keefe of Hanover, and the late Deborah (Clark) Parrell. She worked for many years as a home health aide.

Ms. Clark had tremendous pride in raising her son "Adam William" in which she called him. She could direct any conversation into how proud she was of her son and would do anything she ever could for him. She did everything in her will to be a tremendous mother for Adam, in which she was.

She loved to see family as much as she was able to, because she was so full of love for them. Her siblings in Massachusetts looked at her as the fun loving, hippie ray of sunshine she was. Her siblings in Florida, while viewing her the same way, had viewed her more as a guiding person as she did all she could to care for them, as if they were not just her siblings, but as if they were her children. Also, she loved attending concerts, she was especially a Grateful Dead fan. Ms. Clark was a musical and lyrical soul, that she had let out into the world. She also loved nature, as she would camp on the Boston Harbor Islands such as Peddocks Island and Ransford, where she met so many of her friends that she made memories to cherish in life.

Ms. Clark loved to help people whether it be would be with a simple favor or to give somebody advice leaving people always with a sense of hope. Whoever she met, if they gave her a place in their life, she would give them a place in her heart. Ms. Clark was a nostalgic woman, one who could make anything into something beautiful, because it was always done with her heart and soul. Faydra was a simple woman in that with the right people, she could make anything into a beautiful memory. She was a protector and compassionate for all who she loved.

She was the devoted mother of Adam W. Foster of Hull and his girlfriend Brenna Leach of Weymouth. She was the sister of Ricky Keefe, Sara Desher, Tiffani Brosnan-Vignoe, Derick Montello, and Michael Montello.

In lieu of flowers, Ms. Clark's wish was written to her son in a card, to have a "prosperous future" and was tremendously proud of him going to college. It was her dream for him to achieve the best of what he could be. Any donation will go towards his schooling, as that was one of the last things they spoke about together and how excited she was to go see the school with him and read all of his work.

"Our 4-week group format will provide support and education to those whose loved ones are struggling with these issues in their families," Shanahan continued. "This group is open to new members, so it's fine if some individuals cannot attend a session, although you do need to register in advance."

Rachel Sykes, graduate intern mental health counselor, added, "One of my favorite things about working here is that our amazing donors enable us to offer services at a discount, and sometimes even at no cost, like this service. I can see how much our clients appreciate this."

LEGAL NOTICE

Quincy-The Northeast Regional Office of the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Protection (MassDEP), Drinking Water Program has required that the City of Quincy to take certain actions with respect to the Lead and Copper Rule. The directive is a result of City's lead results exceeding the action level for the presence of lead which is 15 parts per billion.

The City conducted an audit of the approximate 23,500 water service records on file and identified 60 addresses that may have a lead or lead-lined water service. Please call Business Manager Paul Della Barba at (617) 376-1406 or visit our website www.quincyma.gov/govt/depts/pwd to inquire about, or to view a list of the 60 addresses that may have a lead or lead-lined service connection. Currently, the City is mandated by the MassDEP to test 15 the 60 residences with a known lead or lead-lined water service and 2 schools bi-annually. The lead and copper sampling results which were collected during the fall of 2019 indicated that 2 of the 15 residences tested were found with levels above the action level set by the DEP. Each school tested below the action level.

Exposure to lead poses a serious health risk to children, particularly those 5 years of age and younger. While the majority of children's lead exposure comes from sources such as soil contamination, dust, or paint chips, lead in drinking water can be a contributing factor to overall lead exposure. Lead is not a common contaminant in drinking water when it is distributed through the public water supply.

The City's water distribution system does not contain lead above the drinking water standards, although lead service pipes, fixtures soldered with lead or the age of some fixtures can add lead to tap water. Quincy's water is supplied by the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority (MWRA), which was created in 1985. The water supplied to the City by the MWRA comes from the Quabbin and Wachusett Reservoirs west of Boston. These reservoirs supply water to 51 communities providing a combined 200 gallons a day of high quality water. MWRA water is monitored by a state-of-the-art system, 24 hours a day, 7 days a week ensuring that it stays free of contaminants. Annual and monthly test results are posted on www.mwra.com. The MWRA tests over 1,600 water samples per month, before reaching household taps.

Concerned homeowners can take steps to reduce lead exposure related to tap water.

They include:

- Most importantly - Flush the tap until after the water feels cold before use. The flushing of your tap ensures the best quality water.
- Never use hot water from the faucet for drinking or cooking, especially when making baby formula.
- Never boil water to remove lead. Boiling water for an extended time may make the lead more concentrated.
- Check your plumbing to make sure it is not adding lead to your water

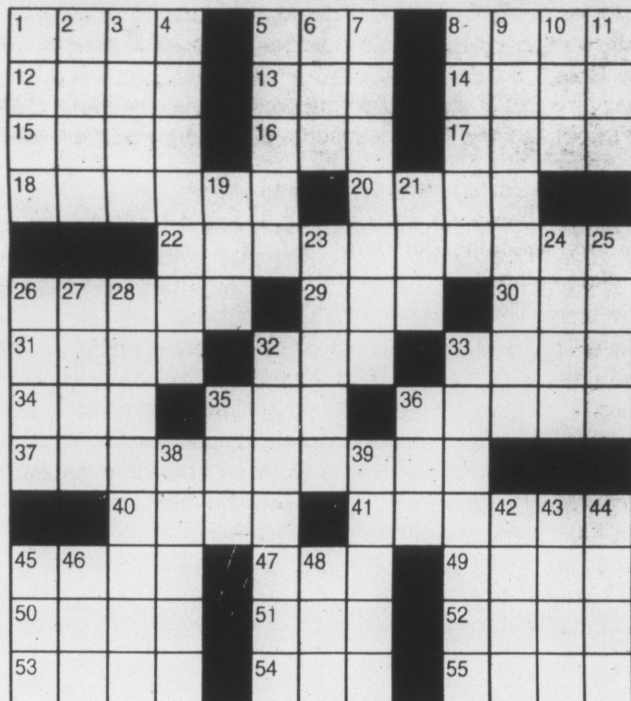

Through Mayor Koch's long-standing commitment to infrastructure investments, the city has enjoyed a steady replacement of lead services over the years while also ensuring high quality drinking water and a water distribution system in good repair for residents and for new businesses.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Use that Arian charm to help make a difficult workplace transition easier for everyone. News about a long-awaited decision can be confusing. Don't jump to conclusions.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Although you might well be tempted to be more extravagant than you should be at this time, I'm betting you'll let your sensible Bovine instinct guide you toward moderation.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) An opportunity for travel could come with some problems regarding travel companions and other matters. So be sure you read all the fine print before you start packing.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Make an effort to complete your usual workplace tasks before volunteering for extra duty. Scrambling to catch up later on could create some resentment among your colleagues.

LEO (July 23 to August 22)
A financial matter could have you rethinking your current spending plans. You might want to recheck your budget to see where you can cut back on expenses until the situation improves.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) One way to make your case for that promotion you've been hoping for might be to put your planning skills to work in helping to shape up a project that got out of hand. Good luck.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Be careful about "experts" who have no solid business background.

Instead, seek advice on enhancing your business prospects from bona fide sources with good success records.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Standing up to support a colleague's viewpoint -- even if it's unpopular -- can be difficult if you feel outnumbered. But you'll win plaudits for your honesty and courage.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) While progress continues on resolving that recurring problem, you might feel it's taking too long. But these things always need to develop at their own pace. Be patient.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Someone close to you might have a financial problem and seek your advice. If you do decide to get involved, insist on seeing everything that might be relevant to this situation.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A personal matter takes an interesting turn. The question is, do you want to follow the new path or take time out to reconsider the change? Think this through before deciding.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Moving into a new career is a big step. Check that offer carefully with someone who has been there, done that, and has the facts you'll need to help you make your decision.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your warmth and generosity both of spirit and substance endears you to everyone.

HOLLYWOOD

by Tony Rizzo

HOLLYWOOD -- Sophia Loren, one of four of the last living movie legends of The Golden Age of Hollywood (the others being Jane Fonda, Shirley MacLaine and Robert Redford), received a lifetime achievement award from Lina Wertmuller at the Capri-Hollywood film festival on Dec. 30. Sophia started her career in the 1950s and made more than 80 films, including "Two Women," for which she won a best actress Oscar in 1961. Now 84, she's anticipating the March release of "The Life Ahead," her first feature film in a decade, directed by her son Edoardo Ponti.

When Jennifer Hudson made the rounds of talk shows promoting "Cats," she revealed her current project is portraying Aretha Franklin. Franklin told Hudson after seeing her in Broadway's "The Color Purple," "You are my choice to play me when they make a movie of my life." Hudson confessed: "That was a long time ago. I can't believe it's actually happening." The film is called "Respect" and co-stars Forest Whitaker, Marlon Wayans, Audra MacDonald, Mary K. Blige (as Dinah Washington), Tate Donovan and Titus Burgess. It opens Aug. 14.

Are we ready for yet another "Cinderella" movie? This one will feature four-time James Bond actor Pierce Brosnan, who went from 007 to "Mamma Mia," starring as the king. Also cast are "Pose" star Billy Porter and "Frozen" star Idina Menzel. Late-night talk-show host James Cordon is one of the producers and promises this is a musical comedy reimagining of the traditional Cinderella story. Brosnan also stars with Will Ferrell and Rachel McAdams in Netflix's "Eurovision."

Sam Heughan, who scored big as Jamie Fraser in the Starz series "Outlander" and in 2018's "The Spy Who Dumped Me" (with Mila Kunis and Kate McKinnon), has been cast in the upcoming film "An Unquiet Life," a biopic about Patricia Neal and her husband, Roald Dahl. Keeley Hawes ("Bodyguard") will play Neal and Hugh Bonneville ("Downton Abbey") will play Dahl. Heughan has been cast as superstar screen heartthrob Paul Newman, who co-starred with Neal in her Oscar-winning performance in the 1963 film "Hud." Dahl is best known for writing "Charlie and the Chocolate Factory" and "James and the Giant Peach."

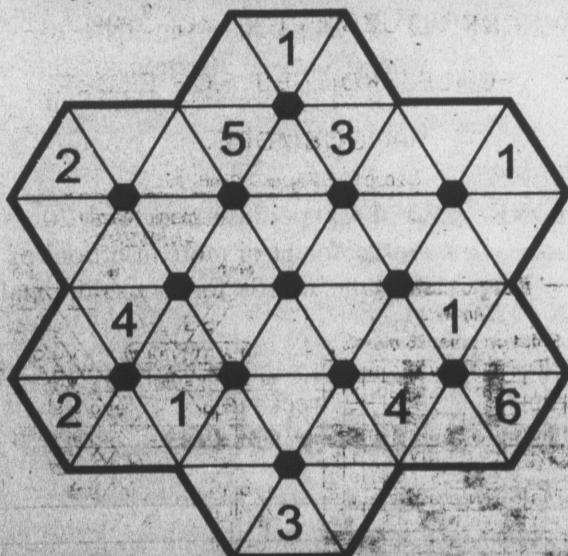

Heughan has completed "SAS: Red Notice," with Ruby Rose, Tom Wilkinson and Andy Serkis, about a groom whose wedding plans get interrupted by a train hijacking, and "Bloodshot," with Vin Diesel and Guy Pearce, with Vin Diesel as a resurrected superhuman biotech killing machine (in theaters Feb. 21). The Scottish-born Heughan is on the short list to be the next James Bond when and if Daniel Craig really intends to give up being 007. During the last negotiation he would've walked until big money talked.

KOVELS' Antiques & Collecting

By Terry and Kim Kovel

Clobbered Porcelain

The English word "clobbered" has been used since at least the 1600s, but its meaning has changed. It still means beaten up, badly injured or damaged. But the word had a very different meaning in the 1700s. It describes porcelain dishes or ornaments with blue-and-white underglaze decoration that were altered. And in an auction catalog or antiques display, the clobbered alterations are not bad and not damaging, but enhancing, and not a reason to pay a lower price. The Chinese made most of the blue-and-white pieces in the late 1700s to early 1800s. They were shipped to many countries and overpainted with colored glazes because the public would pay more for colored urns or dishes. The decorations did not follow the blue-and-white outlines of the original glaze, but were applied as new pictures and ornamental designs over the old glaze. The English did the same overglaze decorating, but many thought it was damaged, not improved. The Germans called it "schwarzlot" (blackish) decoration. A pair of "Chinese Export clobbered porcelain vases" were sold at a New Orleans auction for $5,750. Clobbering in green, pink, yellow and copper red in the mid-1800s has added to its value today.

Q: Wouldn't spoons made in the 1800s be worth more than the silver melt-down price? What makes sterling silver flatware eligible to be called "museum quality?"

A: Most old silver flatware is no longer popular and doesn't sell well. People don't want to bother cleaning silver. It needs to be washed by hand, polished regularly and stored properly in order to avoid tarnish, scratches and dents. It shouldn't be put in the dishwasher with stainless steel or other metal flatware. Certain foods, rubber, felt, wool, oak and some types of paint will cause silver to tarnish. Silver flatware should be stored in special flannel bags or chests lined with tarnish-resistant flannel. Storing silver in plastic wrap or newspapers, or in cardboard boxes, causes it to discolor. Sterling silver has a "melt-down value," the cash price of the amount of silver the piece contains. "Museum quality" is whatever the museum decides it wants to include in exhibits as interesting art, design or history. Even the name of a famous or early maker doesn't guarantee the piece is of great value. Best sellers include Tiffany, Georg Jensen and some top-of-the-line Gorham.

CURRENT PRICES

Creamer, porcelain, pink and brown border, company monogram, marked, Ellerman Lines, 1900s, 3 3/4 inches, $25. Tazza, bronze, gilt, cat, owl, arabesque, leaves, vines, berries, Antoine-Louis Barye, 7 1/4 x 6 1/2 inches, $170.

TIP: If a white powder forms on a piece made of lead, or glasses or pottery decorated with a lead glaze, immediately remove the piece from your house. The powder is poisonous. Consult an expert conservator if it is valuable and should be saved. Do the ecologically correct thing if you must dispose of the piece.

Strange BUT TRUE

* It was Nigerian poet and novelist Ben Okri who made the following sage observation: "Beware of the stories you read or tell; subtly, at night, beneath the waters of consciousness, they are altering your world."

* Romans thought that roses could prevent drunkenness.

* The neon sign was invented in France in 1910, but the first one didn't come to the United States until 1923. That was the year a car dealership in Los Angeles put up two brightly lit "Packard" signs. The novelties literally stopped traffic in the streets.

* Those who study such things say that China gets more earthquakes than any other country.

* Medical specialists say that the true definition of an insomniac is someone who wants to go to sleep but can't. If you can't go to sleep but aren't really trying anyway, the term doesn't apply to you.

* Pure water doesn't conduct electricity; in fact, it's an insulator. It's the impurities in water that conduct electricity -- making it a bad idea to use a hair dryer in the shower. There are underground lakes so pure that you can safely change a light bulb in them.

* The old Pony Express has been romanticized in modern times, but it's rarely pointed out that it was a financial failure. The mail delivery service actually lost an average of $13 for every item it carried.

* According to a number of psychological surveys and studies, men have more friends early in life, while women have more friends when they're older.

* All tortoises are turtles, but not all turtles are tortoises.

Now here's a tip!

by Jo Ann Derson

* To extend the shelf life of your bunch of bananas, try wrapping the stem tightly with a piece of plastic wrap. They also can be kept in the refrigerator if you don't mind cold bananas, like when you are slicing them into cereal or using them in a smoothie. The skins may brown, but the inside will not over-ripen to match.

* "If you have extra books hanging around, why not contact your local nursing homes to see if anyone would like some new reading material?" -- T. in South Carolina

* H.W. in Massachusetts writes: "I use a bathroom chair in my tub and always wash the exterior. One day, a tip came off one of the legs and when I turned it over to replace it, I was horrified to see black mold underneath. I sprayed it with cleaner and it cleaned up perfectly. Please offer this tip to my fellow senior citizens. Mold is really bad."

* "Many people have resolutions to eat healthier or to get more exercise. Why not connect with friends to be accountable to one another? You can cook together so that you will have healthy options for meals and snacks, and even if you cannot walk or go to the gym together, you can check in with each other a few times a week to make sure the person hasn't fallen off the wagon. Be an encourager!" -- F.L. in Oregon

30 Plunge For Atherton Hough School

"The legs are a bit numb, but it was manageable," he said. "But it's 50 degrees in January. You can't do better than that."

Joe Murphy said the plunge isn't just a Houghs Neck event.

"It's one of those events where it's not the just the school parents that participate, but, we get people from all over Quincy," he said. "It's a lot of fun and we raise awareness about our PTO and have fun with the community."

Murphy voiced appreciation to the Quincy Yacht Club for providing an indoor respite for the plungers as well as the PTO's sign-up desk and bake sale table. The Quincy Fire Department and Quincy Police Marine Unit were also at the event. The marine unit's scuba team had divers in the water as a safety precaution.

Murphy said the fundraiser goes a long way to supporting the school.

"Anything we can do to help the help the school and fill in the gaps," he said.

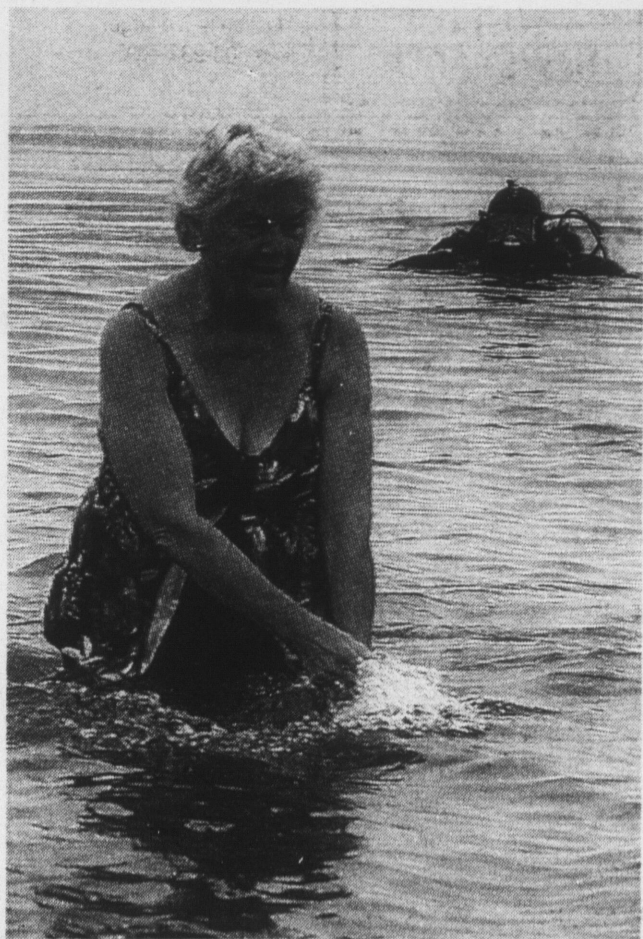

MARGARET FLAHERTY, a first grade teacher at the Atherton Hough Elementary School, finds the water a tad chilly behind the Maritime Center Jan. 4th. She was among the 30 participants who took part in the sixth annual Houghs Neck "Polar Plunge."

Brockton's Strand Theater Fire Tragedy Topic Thursday At Quincy Historical Society

The story of one of Massachusetts' greatest fire tragedies will be recounted by author and archivist Nicole Casper in a Quincy Historical Society program on Thursday, Jan. 16 at 7 p.m. at the Adams Academy, 8 Adams St., Quincy.

The Brockton Fire Department received an alarm shortly after midnight on March 10, 1941 for a fire at the Strand Theatre in the city's downtown. As fire companies responded, a second alarm was struck.

Within an hour, the roof of the Strand collapsed. Thirteen firefighters were killed and more than 20 were injured. What began as a routine fire turned into a disaster that constitutes one of the worst losses of firefighters' lives from a burning building collapse in the United States.

Casper is director of Archives and Historical Collections at Stonehill College, where she also co-teaches the college's Public History course. She is co-author, with James Benson, of "The Strand Theatre Fire: the 1941 Brockton Tragedy and the Fallen Thirteen."

Everyone is welcome to attend. There is no admission charge. A book signing will follow the talk.
